BELFAST DISORDERS

TROOPS DRAFTED INTO CITY

STRIKE THREAT

LORD CRAIGAVON'S CHALLENGE

London, Oct. 12. An armed peace is being preserved in Belfast. Troops have been brought in and posted strategically to deal with any serious outbreak of violence, while the police have been heavily reinforced.

Yesterday's rioting took place in the Nationalist quarter of Belfast. On more than one occasion to-day, the unemployed attempted further demonstrations. Rioting broke out at one or two points, but swift action by the police brought a restoration of order within a few minutes.

The police appear to have the situation well in hand, though the vigilance is not being relaxed in any way.

ALL POLICE ARMED.

Over three thousand police are now on duty. They have all been equipped with revolvers and rifles, while armoured cars are still patrolling the danger areas.

Seven lorries, loaded with officers and men of the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, armed with machine guns, have been drafted into the city, and they have set up posts in the main streets of the Nationalist quarter.

As a further precaution, the curfew order requiring all civilians to be off the streets between the hours of 11 p.m. and 5 a.m. is being maintained.

SEVENTY ARRESTS.

The police have been busy all through the day making raids on suspected premises. In the course of these surprise visits they have discovered quantities of arms and ammunition in the possession of civilians.

Seventy arrests have already been made.

Late last night, Reuter's Belfast correspondent indicated that the city was quiet, most of the streets being deserted.

Lord Craigavon, in the course of a speech at a meeting of Belfast Unionists said:

"If mischief-makers have come to Belfast to create an Irish Republic, they will be disappointed."

He was not a man to be intimidated, he added.

STRIKE CALL.

The Belfast Trades Council has passed a resolution calling upon the Trade Unions to strike in sympathy with the relief workers, but it is considered unlikely that the Trade Union will concur, particularly as the local shipyard are hoping to secure remunerative orders shortly.

A conference has been opened with the Lord Mayor and other prominent Belfast citizens to consider applying scales of unemployment benefit similar to those prevailing in England.—Reuter and British Wireless.

PRINCES LEAVE SWEDEN

RECEIVE WELCOME IN DENMARK

London, Oct. 12. The Prince of Wales and Prince George this afternoon flew in the Imperial Airways liner "Hercules" from Malmö, Sweden, via Hamburg to Copenhagen.

They were greeted by Prince and Princess Axel of Denmark.

Mr. Charles Corkran, son of a British General who with Mrs. Muriel Pawley, is a prisoner of bandits in Manchuria.

HONGKONG AND EMPIRE

DUTY ON FOREIGN CARS HINTED AT

OTTAWA SEQUEL

Cabled summaries forwarded by Reuter to-day of the provisions of the Ottawa Agreements show that the Crown Colonies have been brought into the general scheme of preferences.

Ceylon will be invited to adopt the principle of Imperial Preference in respect of a number of Indian products, of which cotton piece-goods are the most important.

At the same time, the Government of British Malaya will be invited to give India a preference in return for which India will grant preferences to certain colonial products.

HONGKONG'S PART.

Arrangements were made at Ottawa on behalf of all the Crown Colonies to provide for numerous increased preferences, but these are confined to motor vehicles in Hongkong and the Straits Settlements.

It is expected that the reduction of duty upon canned pineapples will benefit Malaya.

Numerous tropical products, including fruits from the West Indies and vegetable oils from West Africa are receiving preferences from the Dominions.

A PUZZLE.

The reference to increased preferences by Hongkong in respect of motor vehicles is confusing, inasmuch as at the present time this Colony grants no preferences on any commodities whatever.

It has been generally assumed that Hongkong would be very slightly affected by the Ottawa agreements, seeing that so little is produced locally which could enjoy reciprocal treatment in return for any preferences which the Colony might grant.

DUTIABLE GOODS.

By its status as a distributing centre, Hongkong's prosperity has been built up on a free port policy, and it has been widely felt that any marked interference with this policy would be detrimental to the Colony's best interests.

The possibility of giving some slight preference on commodities already subjected to duty, such as wines, spirits, beer, tobacco, etc., has been mentioned, but there has been no indication of Hongkong adding to the list of dutiable articles.

LICENCE DIFFERENTIATION?

In regard to motor vehicles, amongst the suggestions made has been one that a higher licence fee might be imposed on foreign makes than on British vehicles, although it seems doubtful, if such a plan were adopted, whether it would be of any real value to British manufacturers.

Up to the present, the local authorities have not released any statement as to the precise manner in which Hongkong will be affected by the Ottawa Agreements.

MORE FOOD TAXES CERTAIN

VALUABLE DOMINIONS' CONCESSIONS

BRITAIN'S RETURN

SECRETS OF THE OTTAWA AGREEMENTS were revealed by the United Kingdom Government last night. The wide range of the good taxes proposed explains the inability of the Samuelite Liberals to support the Government.

The Anglo-Canadian Agreement provides for a lower duty on forty per cent. of imports from the United Kingdom, while goods valued at £38,000,000 will be admitted duty free each year.

British imports of foreign meats are to be drastically and progressively restricted. Australia gives a Preference to British goods ranging from 15 to 20 per cent.

South Africa imposes minimum specific duties on foreign goods, while certain British products are admitted duty free.

India gives a ten per cent. preference on 163 items, to which may be added cotton and artificial silk piece goods.

New Zealand is reducing all duties on British goods and Newfoundland is granting a ten per cent. preference on certain classes of goods.

Britain will impose duties on foreign butter, cheese, fruits, maize, wheat and so on.

PRINCIPAL POINTS IN AGREEMENTS

London, Oct. 12.

With publication to-night of the summary of the proceedings of the Imperial Conference at Ottawa, the terms of the schedules, which hitherto have been kept back, mainly at the request of the Dominions, owing to the risks of forestalling, are revealed.

It is on the basis of the agreements and the schedules thereto, contained in this report, that legislation has been drafted which will be taken up by the House of Commons immediately Parliament reassembles on Tuesday next.

The legislation will be pressed forward with all speed, not only to prevent forestalling, but because under the Import Duties Act provision for the free entry of imports from the Dominions and the Colonies ceases on November 15th.

WORLD TRADE.

The report contains the terms of the agreements between the United Kingdom and the various Dominions and India and, in the opinion of the Government, the agreements greatly increase the opportunity of inter-Imperial trading and represent an important step towards the restoration of world trade.

This over-riding consideration was expressed in a resolution passed by the Conference, which declared that by the lowering of the removal of barriers among themselves, as provided for in the agreements, the flow of trade between the various countries of the Empire would be facilitated and that by the consequent increase of the purchasing power of their peoples, the trade of the world would also be stimulated and increased.

SAME GENERAL FORM.

The agreements with all the Dominions follow the same general form. Imports from Empire countries into the United Kingdom fall into three classes, namely, those accorded entry free of duty, those subject to revision three years hence, those which are granted a preference through the imposition of specific duties on foreign goods, and those which receive a preference in virtue of the ten per cent. ad valorem duty on foreign goods imposed under the Import Duties Act.

In the first category are included eggs, poultry, butter, cheese and other milk products from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Newfoundland and Southern Rhodesia.

Foreign goods in the second category, respecting which Parliament will be asked to impose specific duties, are set out in the schedules to the agreements and include:

wheat in grain 2/- per quarter; butter 15/- per cwt; cheese 16 per cent ad valorem.

Schedules to the various agreements set out the details of the other proposed duties.

FRUIT DUTIES.

In the schedule to the Canadian agreement goods specified include apples, pears, canned apples, dried fruits, eggs, condensed milk.

Under the corresponding schedule of the Australian agreement are included in addition to the above:

powdered milk, honey, raw oranges, grape fruits.

The New Zealand agreement makes no additions to this list, but the schedules attached to the South African agreement includes a number of specific duties to be imposed on foreign imports of various other fruits, raw and canned, and also 10% ad valorem duty throughout the year on maize.

The only items specified in the corresponding schedule of the Newfoundland agreement are a duty on foreign cod liver oil of 1/4d per gallon and on chilled or frozen salmon of 1 1/2d per pound.

INDIA AGREEMENT.

Under the United Kingdom-Indian agreement which is subject to ratification in India, provision is made for the imposition of duties on foreign imports of wheat, rice, castor oil, magnesium, chloride, and linseed.

An undertaking is given by the United Kingdom Government not to reduce the existing general ad valorem duty of ten per cent. imposed under the Import Duties Act on a large class of foreign goods which are already enumerated in the special schedules to the agreements.

DESPAIR OF 'BOOKIES'

NITSICHIN'S WIN AT NEWMARKET

GREAT STRUGGLE IN STRAIGHT

(Our Own Correspondent).

London, Oct. 12. The King and Queen, the Princess Royal and the Earl of Harwood, were members of an exceptionally large crowd which to-day saw Nitsichin win the Cesarewitch in a magnificent race.

The winning horse is owned by Mr. D. Kennedy, a London stockbroker. Mr. A. Buxton's Chelmarsh, considered a good outside chance, occupied second place, and Lord Rosebery's Sandwich, last year's St. Leger winner and today's favourite, ran third.

NINTH INTO STRAIGHT

The going was good, but in the early stages of the race the sun made the colours of the jockeys indistinguishable and it was until the runners came into the straight that the positions could be accurately observed.

Claymore was first round the bend, with Chelmarsh, Roi de Paris, West Wicklow, Sandwich, Sandals, Son of Mint, Blue Vision and Nitsichin close on her heels in that order.

CLAYMORE BEATEN.

A quarter of a mile from home, Claymore was beaten, Chelmarsh having taken the lead with Roi de Paris, Claymore, Sandwich and Nitsichin following.

Nitsichin was running magnificently and shortly afterwards swept into second place and passing Chelmarsh on the rising ground won by three lengths.

HONGKONG NOT IN PICTURE.

There was a fine struggle between Chelmarsh and Sandwich for second place, but Chelmarsh fought off the challenge of Lord Rosebery's horse and gained the verdict by two lengths.

Roi de Paris was fourth, Blandina fifth, Sandals sixth and Popotte, from Guernsey last.

The winner's time was three minutes, fifty-one and two-fifths seconds.

The bookmakers are despondent at the result, declaring that they would even have preferred a victory for Sandwich. Nitsichin was very heavily backed on all books.

FATE OF CHENG KWOK-YAU

A PETITION FOR CLEMENCY

CHINESE CUSTOMS

Over fifty of the most prominent Chinese residents of the Colony, under the leadership of a well-known Chinese merchant, have signed a petition which will be presented to the Government some time next week in an attempt to secure a commutation of the sentence on Cheng Kwok-yau, the rich young man condemned to death for procuring the death of George Fung.

Those who have signed the petition decline to disclose their names for good reasons, but it is understood that the petition is written in Chinese and was prepared by a learned Chinese scholar.

The plea for clemency advances the tender age of the condemned man and the fact that he and Lay Ming-fai were actually husband and wife in the eyes of Chinese, because they had lived together as man and wife for months, as reasons.

The petitioners plead that Chinese customs demand the severe punishment of offences such as the seduction of a man's wife. The petition has been translated into English for consideration by the authorities.

LIBERALS' POLICY

MASSED QUEEN'S HALL MEETING

"L.G." ON TREATY OF VERSAILLES

London, Oct. 13. A great audience at Queen's Hall last night recorded its approval of the resignations of the Liberal ex-Cabinet members, Sir Herbert Samuel, Sir Archibald Sinclair and their colleagues.

Sir Herbert Samuel was the principal speaker. He claimed that the main task for which he had joined the Government was finished.

"L.G." HOLDS OWN MEETING.

In the meanwhile, Mr. Lloyd George, who refused to attend the meeting at Queen's Hall, was addressing a large peace gathering at the Guildhall.

The veteran statesman issued a warning of the danger ever-present of the world unwittingly plunging into another war.

He was convinced, he said, that no ruler in Europe desired war in 1914, but the machinery, once started, crashed forward and overwhelmed civilisation.

DEFENDS TREATY IF—

Mr. Lloyd George said he was quite prepared to defend the Treaty of Versailles if it was completely carried out, but he declared that the majority of the signatories never intended that.

Before the ink was dry, they were arranging to create new armies.

"I am the last man to plead for Germany, but honour demands that we carry out our pledged word and to follow Germany's example in disarming."—Reuter.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

The hands selected for publication usually contain a game contract which is either made or defeated by spectacular play. However, the majority of the hands played are commonplace. There are dozens of hands in which skilful play is required to make one or two odd, besides the usual sprinkling of misfits which lead to disaster.

There is, however, one important difference in that each hand has an equal bearing on the final outcome. The defence must be on its toes every minute and cannot afford to play listlessly because the contract is an unimportant one. It is just as important to defeat a one bid as a grand slam.

♠ A-K-8-7 ♥ Q-J ♦ 10-6-2 ♣ 10-9-8-2	♠ 9-6-5- 4-3-2 ♥ 10-7 ♦ A-K-9 ♣ Q-3
♠ None ♥ K-8-6- 5 ♦ Q-J-8- 7-5 ♣ K-7-5- 4	♠ Q-J-10 ♥ A-9-4-3-2 ♦ 4-3 ♣ A-J-6

The Bidding.

A one-over-one player would not open the South hand in first position, but the particular player happened to be using a different system, so he opened with one heart. West passed and North bid one spade. This was perfectly satisfactory to South, and, seeing no further need to continue the bidding, he passed and one spade became the final contract.

The Play.

East inferred from the bidding that North must have four spades and South three, which of course left none for his partner. Furthermore, his opponents had all the high spades between them and would try to make them separately if possible. Therefore he determined that his best defence was to lead a spade at every opportunity, compelling declarer to take each trick twice.

He led the deuce of spades, dummy played the ten spot, and when West discarded a small club the declarer knew that he was in for trouble. He overtook the first spade trick with the ace in his own hand and returned the ten of clubs, hoping to set up an extra trick or two in that suit.

East did not cover with the queen, and the trick went through to West's king. He returned a diamond, which East won with the king; then East continued his original plan by leading another small spade.

Declarer left the lead in dummy this time, and returned a diamond, hoping to get a ruff in that suit before dummy's trumps were exhausted. However, East again won the diamond trick, with the ace, and returned the third spade.

West discarded his last club. Declarer led the ace of clubs from dummy and followed with the jack, West discarding two hearts and East ruffing the last club trick.

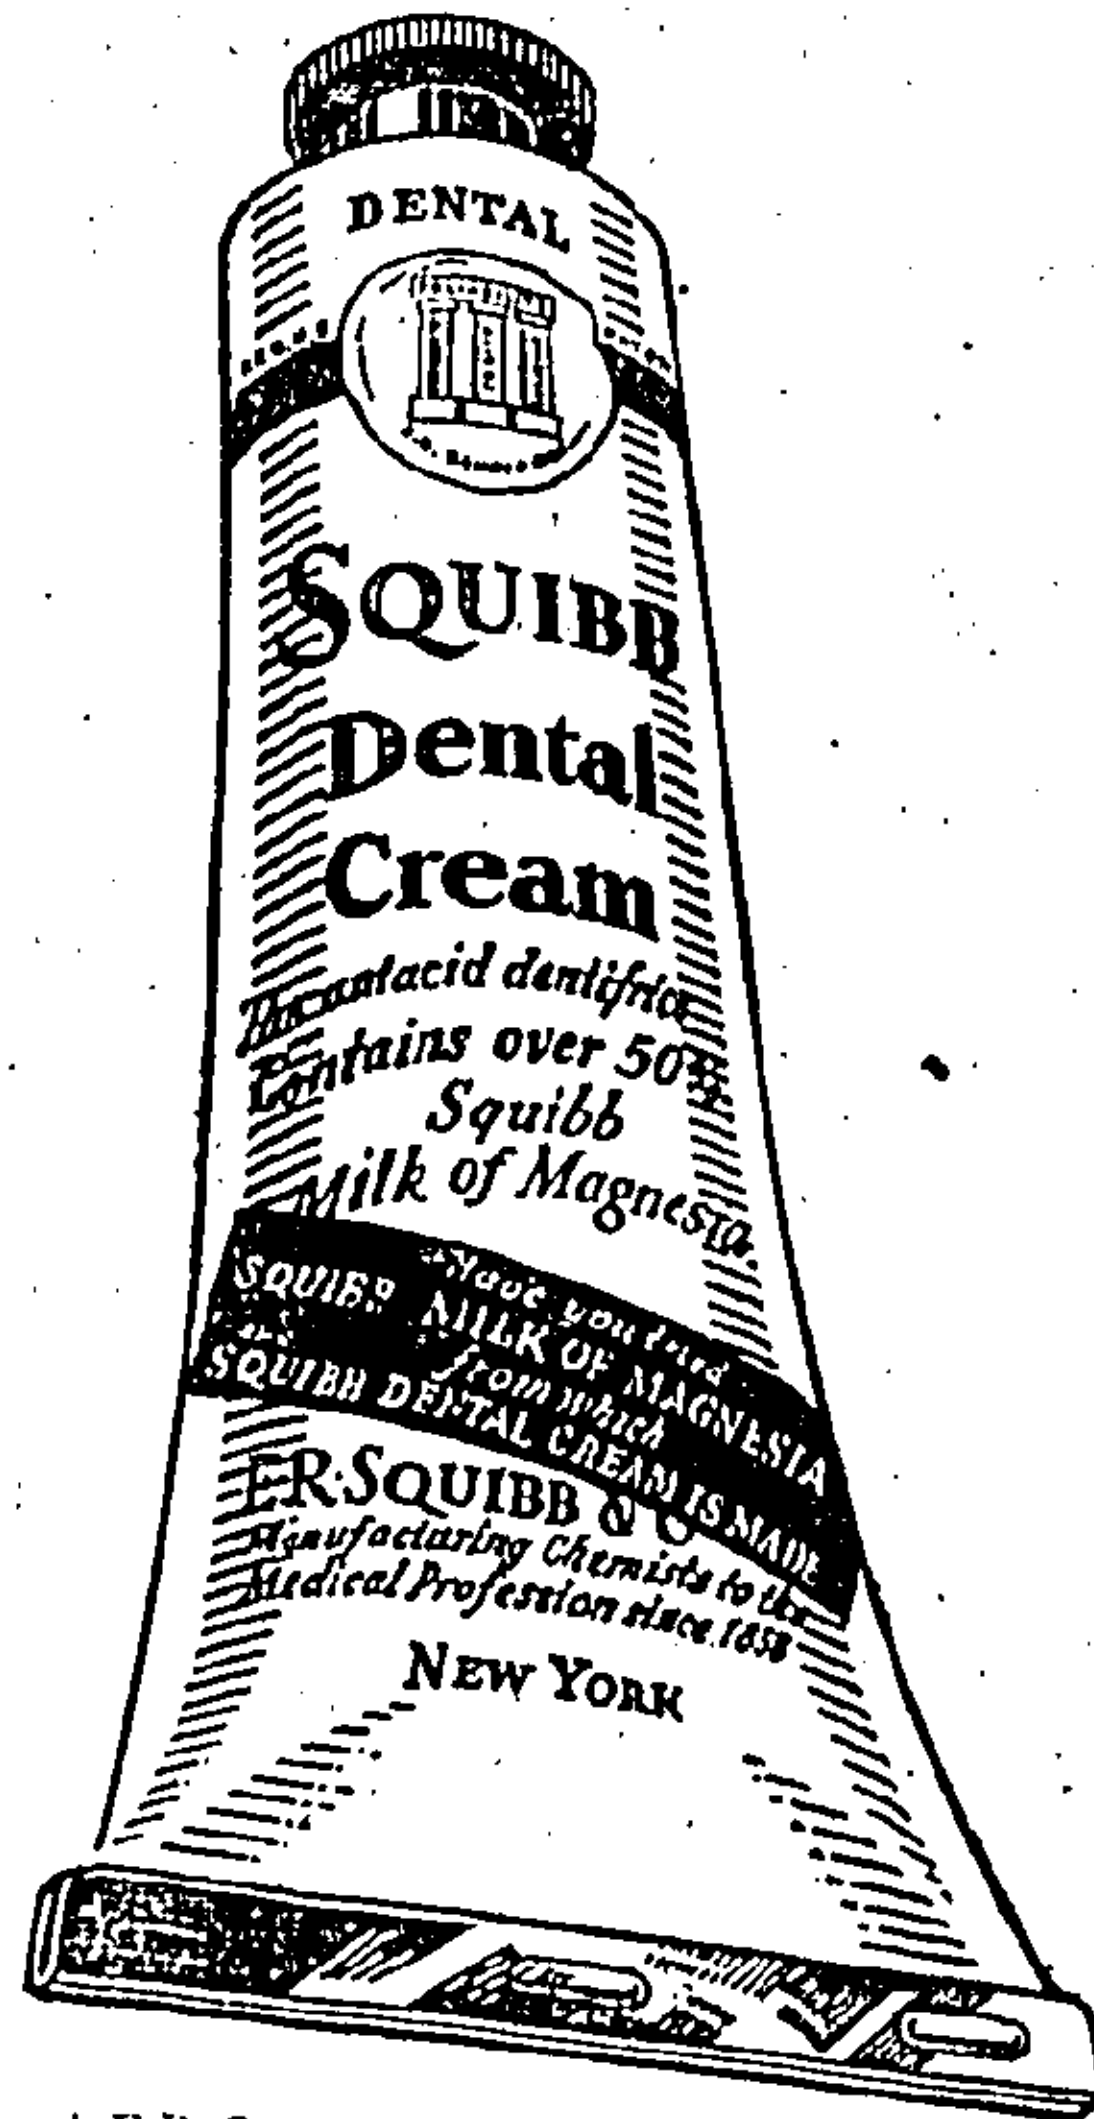

The relentless barrage of spades was continued, putting declarer in the lead with the king. He still had a chance to make his contract if he could find the king of hearts in the East hand, so he decided to stake everything on that possibility. However, the finesse failed and he was down two tricks, rewarding East and West with a top score for their excellent defence.

SATURATION POINT

To reach Saturation Point is the ambition of every manufacturer and producer. It signifies that the sales of his product have absorbed output. In these days not many products attain Saturation Point; production is generally greater than demand. It is not so with soft wood. Here Saturation Point is reached and passed; sufficient timber cannot be cut to cope with the world's needs. Moreover, forestry utilization has been brought to such a fine art that there are now over 4,600 proved uses for pine timber alone, such as is grown in selected areas in New Zealand.

In those fertile islands the N. Z. Perpetual Forests, Limited has evolved a scheme of afforestation which is putting pine tree (i.e. soft wood) growing on a practical and profitable basis.

To date over 85,000 investors of moderate means have collectively purchased more than 127,600 bonds, enabling them to share in the rich return their long-sighted investment must bring.

Their capital is steadily working in New Zealand forests producing the right kind of pine trees to meet the approaching world famine in industrial timber.

Bonds yielding approximately £250 in twelve years, costing £30 each—payable by instalments—may now be secured.

The Late Arnold Bennett's Last Long Story

"DREAM OF DESTINY"

(Copyright Strictly Reserved.)

Next day Roland, fatigued but excited into unusual cerebral activity, had the whole morning press for breakfast, including one or two papers which for years he had not even seen. "All the papers?" the valet-waiter had questioned, as he left the bedroom. "All." The result was quite a pile of sheets, for some of which the stage did not exist. Why had he ordered all the papers? Could it matter to him what might be the hastily scribbled opinions of critics most of whom he despised and sneered at? Well, he said to himself that he was curious to see the reaction of those worse than mediocre brains to "The Tenement Girl" and its performance. The phenomenon had a public interest. To study it would enlarge his knowledge of public taste, which hitherto he had blandly and charitably dismissed. Not that he really cared what the critics wrote! No! Except as a symptom of the broad general view. They might praise or they might blame,—who among the enlightened could be influenced? They praise. As he unfolded paper after paper he realized more and more clearly that the reaction was uniformly enthusiastic in a very high degree. The praise became monotonous. Four papers, with a total circulation of over six million copies, had put their account of the night prominently on the principal news page, side by side with revolutions and the desires of world-renowned pugilists for fame as cinema artists. The majority said straight that the play was a masterpiece, a truly great English comedy such as the Empire had too long been waiting for. The estimation of the length of its popular appeal varied from a year to eternity. Eternity made a year seem ludicrously inadequate. The play possessed every quality, but especially laughter and tears, tenderness and power, solidity and fancifulness. It was clean, healthy, wholesome, and true to life. As he reflected upon the tawdry piece, with its unbridled, unashamed sentimentality, Roland thought: "I wonder what the insides of their heads can be like. Talk about 'mass-suggestion'! One paper said: 'The vast volume of applause rang true.' That at any rate was accurate reporting. And therein perhaps was the secret of the critical reaction: so the cynical fellow imagined. The critical reaction towards Phoebe's performance was equally enthusiastic. She had every gift. She had all the gifts of Mrs. Patrick Campbell and several more. She was extremely beautiful, and she was in her early twenties, and at the apogee of her fame. She had been a star; she was now the star—of two continents; for America had been right. Every paper had a photograph of Phoebe; even the graver sheets, which derided the ways of American journalism, had photographs of her. "And," thought Roland, "I was with her last night, and I took her home, and she's twenty-eight, and I shouldn't call her extremely beautiful (but perhaps she is), and she went into hysterics, and afterwards she said she wasn't real a single moment, and I dare say she wasn't. Strange, she didn't seem to care a pin about upsetting her admirers! Why should she care? Her admirers will have to swallow whatever she gives them, now. She's the greatest Anglo-American star. Still, it was a bit odd that she didn't care. The fact is she isn't like the ordinary actress at all. She never behaves as if she belonged to the theatre. Fact is, she's very young for her age. I hope she slept well. I must telephone her and find out." In the criticisms there was one inharmonious note. An important provincial paper, whose contributor teased the play from beginning to end, smiled at it mischievously, said that it had all the ingredients of popularity, carefully mixed. As to Phoebe he said that, accomplished though she might be, she was consistently and obstinately stagey, and had given a show far inferior to her show in the previous play, which had so ingloriously failed. He said, too, that she had taken the measure of the London public. "This man," thought Roland, "is unfair, and somebody ought to tell him off. However, he's in a minority of one. So it doesn't matter." The notions of the representative of the provinces impressed about in Roland's mind like a swarm of wasps. He tried to ignore them, and could not. How callously cruel were dramatic critics! Surely they ought to show some regard for the sensitiveness of young women, of toiling artists! The same critic sprinkled Mr. Eacott, the hero, with a shower of facetiousness, which Roland enjoyed. The morning was not Mr. Eacott. Phoebe had wiped him out. "Do him good!" thought Roland. The morning was Phoebe's, and no one else's—save Mr. Adderton's, who most be relishing a rare breakfast.

The newspapers littered the floor of Roland's parlour; but before leaving (late) for Thames Court, he gathered them together and crumpled them in their proper folds; he did not wish the valet-waiter to know that his reason for ordering the whole of the morning press was to read theatrical notices. Something undignified about curiosity concerning theatrical notices! He thought: "I won't ring her up just yet. She's probably asleep." From Thames Court he went out to lunch in Sloane Square half an hour earlier than usual. His unavowed aim in doing so was to read the notices in the three evening papers as soon as he decently could. The evening papers resembled the morning papers. Three hearts that beat as one. But there was more than in the morning papers. The evening papers had been collecting news and gossip for their lunch editions. News of the biggest 'libraries' deal in the history of 'straight' plays. Gossip about her father. It appeared that Mr. Friar was a wealthy man, and had always been wealthy; and that his flat in Phillibert Court was the most wondrous in London; and that despite his riches he had taught himself to be a practical cabinet-maker and had encouraged his gifted daughter to go forth and earn a living; and that on the occasion of the first night he was the distinguished figure who sat, with his charming wife, in the opposite prompt stage box on the first tier.

Roland neglected his work in the afternoon, while feigning to be very busy. He said to himself: "She'll be being worried for interviews all day. I won't call her up till six o'clock." He left Thames Court early, intending to walk home. As he emerged from the Green Park into Piccadilly he could not resist buying, at five forty-five, the Late Night Final of his chief evening paper, for a Late Night Final differs so much from a Lunch Edition that it might have been published on another day. Moreover, he wanted to read again the notice, the news, and the gossip.

The make-up of the front page had been completely altered. His eye caught the familiar word 'Phoebe', which he singled out as if by instinct. A very short paragraph about Phoebe, and it was at the bottom of the last column; for after all there are limits to free publicity. "Miss Phoebe Friar, the heroine of last night's great triumph, etc., has had the misfortune to be taken ill, and is confined to her bed for a few days. Her role will be played to-night by Miss Rosio Draper, her understudy, whose exquisite performance in 'Maled' will be remembered by all who saw it." Roland stopped a taxi and as he stepped into it ejaculated: "Phillibert Court."

"My God!" he said aloud in the vehicle, "what a cursed shame!" (To be continued.)

UNFINISHED MASTERPIECE

Arnold Bennett's last long story was left unfinished, but this does not spoil its worth or readable quality, but rather adds a mystery value which will be found very intriguing.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

BEAUTY HINTS.

Coiffures May Change
With Seasons.

Every once in a while every woman looks in the mirror, sighs, and wishes that she could snap out of her present face and try another.

Of course you have to keep the eyes and nose and mouth that nature gave you, but you don't have to follow the same trend, year after year, when it comes to a coiffure. It is possible to be daring one season, and demure the next. But make sure that your hair is aiding you by forming a proper frame for your face, no matter what note you are trying to strike.

If you aren't sure just what to do about your hair, there is no one around to give you expert advice, and you can't rely on your own judgment, don't go in for a severe style. Only perfect, classical features carry severity well. Most faces need the softening effect of a line that sweeps the forehead, or a curl or two.

If you want curls, have your hair waved about the face. Avoid tight, numerous waves. Two or three soft, flat ones are much lovelier than a corkscrew effect that resembles a furrowed field. Have the back of your hair curled into round curls. You must let the ends grow rather long before this can be accomplished successfully. Curling takes up several inches of hair length.

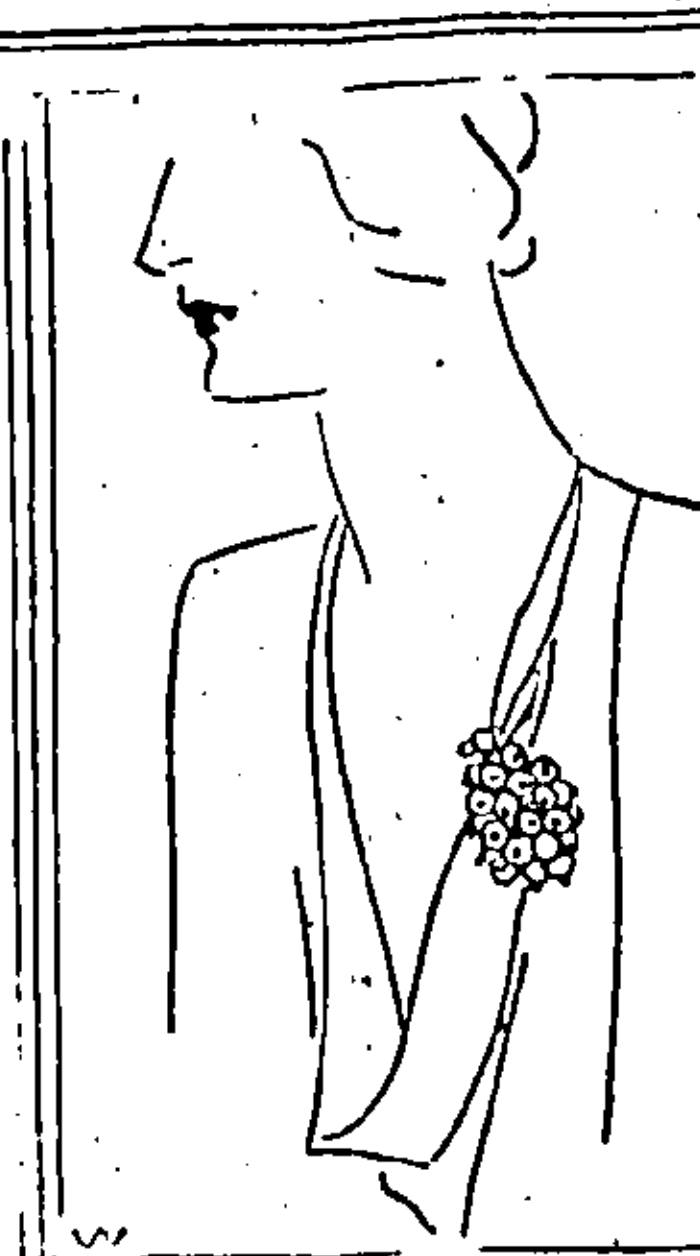

You will be able to keep the curls in order by winding them up on kid curlers or twisting them around a curling iron.

Some women part their hair on the left side. Others choose the right. A few prefer to let the line go straight down the middle. Unless you are fairly confident that the two sides of your face are pretty well balanced, your nose is straight and your cheeks are right, try a side part. It is more flattering.

If you are letting your hair grow and don't know how to manage the hair on the back of your neck, a roll at the nape of the neck, will help you—unless you want the curls. If your face is broad, it will help to shorten it if you let your ears show. If you want a few stray curls over your forehead, a waving lotion will show you how this is done. —By ALICIA HART.

Milk that has been coloured with chocolate and flavoured with a little white corn syrup is often more attractive to children than plain milk. The energy value of the milk also increases by the addition of the chocolate and syrup.

THE ARMAMENTS MUDDLE

The presence in London of Mr. Norman Davis and the French Premier again centres attention on the disarmament question. One of the objects of Mr. Davis' visit is to attempt to reconcile the Hoover proposals with the British disarmament programme, while Mr. Herriot is to explore the general disarmament question with the British Prime Minister. It is hoped that, as a result of these conversations, the Geneva Conference will be able to get down closer to realities, and, maybe, achieve something to allay German impatience and dissatisfaction. If these aims are realised, the way should be made all the easier for definite progress in the cause of disarmament.

It is now becoming evident that the German equality demand is being given a more sympathetic reception in various countries than was evidenced by the first reactions. Possibly this attitude is an outcome of the sharp disillusionment that has followed upon the failure to make any real advance towards general disarmament. It is not, however, intended to convey any indication of a general desire to see Germany re-armed. In that direction can only lie mischief and menace. At the same time, the German plea is an appropriate reminder that something will have to be done, and that soon. The Versailles signatories cannot profess to be carrying out Article VIII so long as they continue to spend money at the present rate on their armies, navies and air fleets. Germany, for her part, is disinclined to accept the promissory phrase in the Treaty as a sentimental flourish meaning nothing in particular, and the Powers have no right to expect that she should do so. France tells Germany that she is willing to collaborate in the task of disarmament, but to this the Berlin Government may justly reply that there is nothing more that Germany can do, seeing that she is already subjected to the most drastic obligatory disarmament. The German Chancellor, in the course of a broadcast speech, has emphasised that Germany has no wish to rearm or to embark on a policy of warlike adventure; what cuts her to the quick is the long-continued position of inferiority and defencelessness that she is compelled to endure. Her statesman declares that the other Powers do not wish to apply to themselves the conditions of disarmament they have imposed on Germany. They add that Germany will not consent to being treated as a second-class Power any longer. Their attitude is, in the circumstances, quite understandable.

Looking at the matter squarely, it must be conceded that the world is still far distant from the epoch when all nations will have disarmed themselves to the German level. Yet it is useless for Germany not to take account of the realities and to demand the impossible. But this does not justify the Powers in continuing a policy of dilly-dally and evasion. They will have to face the fact that mankind looks upon them to make a substantial contribution at an early date to the cause of disarmament. Thus, so far as it serves to bring about such a development, the German claim must be welcomed. The next step is up to the Powers, who will have to show cause why they should not act in the spirit of the clauses of the Versailles Treaty which implied a determination to follow the German example of disarmament.

The Silly Season.

The "silly season" at Home has started off with two promising topics. That pugnacious liberal, Mr. A. P. Herbert, leads an attack in the Times on the prudish borough councillors who compel bathers at the seaside to clothe themselves in what (heaven knows why!) are called "universally costumes." Would it really shock ladies to see a "manly chest" on the beach or even in the Serpentine? Or are the Puritans solicitous, like the late Lord Brentford, for the children's morals? One line of defence is that "our borough councillors" are not the only pruders: there are similar regulations in many Continental countries—in most, perhaps, save Germany, the nudists' paradise. But that argument proves nothing except that there are more silly people in the world than Mr. Herbert suggested. One correspondent in the Times takes exception to the "slip" on esthetic grounds. Think, he says, not only of the "manly chests," but of some of the waists below them—"large balloon-like formations, which dot the plage like hay-cocks in a newly cut meadow." True, alas! But do they subside when enclosed in a skin-tight covering of black or white or pink-striped wool? Mr. Herbert will have a long fight, we fear, against Mrs. Grundy and Dogberry. The other topic is the modern boy. This creature, so the headmaster of one of our public schools has proclaimed, is a poor specimen compared with the boy of a generation ago. He lies, he thieives, he funks, he slacks. You cannot even get him to watch a cricket match; it is too boring. Yet everyone but the schoolmasters knows (and they know it too) that boys in the past were bored to tears by watching cricket. As for the lament that Jones major cannot saddle a horse, is it any more surprising, or more disgraceful, than that his father was not taught to dance the minuet? And what is there novel in Smith minor liking to go as fast as possible in a motor car? Was Smith pere in his youth averse from scorching on his push-bike? It is hard to believe in this tale of degenerate youth—sneaking, lazy, neurotic boys and bumptious cock-tail drinking girls. It is a hoary theme; moralists have been at it since Aristophanes, and we dare say they were at it even in the neolithic age.

He had been sufficiently proved against him, but there was sufficient evidence for the authorities to suspend his licence permanently. A fine of $50, or one month, was imposed.

SHADOW OF FATHER

By AN OXFORD UNDERGRADUATE

MUCH venom has been split recently on the subject of the sons of famous fathers. I have had opportunity at Oxford of observing many sons of many famous fathers, for Oxford is their recreation ground.

Oxford has a snobbery of its own.

It is not snobbish in the sense that implies a preference for wealthy people. Although money matters a great deal among a certain set, that set is so small and self-contained that it can be disregarded when generalising about Oxford. Undergraduate feeling on the subject is shown by the inevitable reference to wealthy young men as "disgustingly" or "revoltingly" rich.

Nor is there a widespread snobbery surrounding birth, even when it carries an odd coronet or two. A title is looked upon as a helmet to protect an addled head, and "noble lord" rolls slowly and sarcastically off the tongue.

Nor is there a widespread intellectual snobbery resting on academic attainments. Nor do athletics matter outside their own sphere.

The way to get on

There is a certain amount of snobishness surrounding the men who have become figures in University life by way of the Union, the O.U.D.S., one of the University journals, or a vague literary and artistic dilettantism; but the way to get on at Oxford is to be the son of a distinguished father.

If you are graced by a well-known name, then everyone will seek your acquaintance, everyone will ask you to parties and dinners. People will introduce you with a significant pause on your name, and a light will spring to the eye of the newly introduced friend. A whisper will whisk round the room: "The son of—." Though you have but mediocre attainment you will be jockeyed to fame by your large circle of friends.

If you are the son of a famous politician, the way to success lies open to you at the Union. People will listen to you with attention, and, provided you have the facility for disarming jealousy, you will progress with amazing speed. Indeed, there was one debate at the Union a few years ago in which all those speaking on the motion were sons of well-known statesmen or politicians, and none, it was said, had earned his position by the hard spade-work necessary for less fortunate members who have to speak late at night before a bored and ever-dwindling audience.

There was comment on that debate, and things have changed since. Sons of famous politicians speak at the Union now whose ability has won them that distinction as much as their name. No one would deny that Tony Greenwood, the son of the ex-Minister for Health, on form, is the best example of a dryly inclusive orator at the Union at the moment. No one would deny that Mr. Michael Foot, son of the Minister for Mines, Mr. K. F. Steel, and that defendant held a licence some years ago, but had an accident which had rendered him incapable of driving. He had been sufficiently proved against him, but there was sufficient evidence for the authorities to suspend his licence permanently. A fine of $50, or one month, was imposed.

But my point is that it was far more important for them at the beginning of their Union careers that they had inherited their fathers' names. They stand on their own but they do not stand so high on them that they can disregard the debt they owe to their names. Mr. Giles Playfair has a flair of his own, but he would not say that he owed nothing to the fact that he is the son of Sir Nigel.

Members of the Union like to see the chairs of office occupied by the sons of distinguished men. Many of them would—although they would not admit it themselves—be as much influenced by the name of a candidate for office as by his oratory. After all, it is only a natural pride in their society that makes them like to talk of the well-known names that adorn the lists of presidents and other officials.

The Union is only one facet of undergraduate activity. Outside the political atmosphere notoriety is more desirable in one's parents than solid distinction.

I do not mean that the son of a murderer stands higher in the social scale than the son of a judge. I mean if you are the son of a novelist who has written a best seller, or a famous playwright or actor, or a celebrated K.C., or a big business man who is in the public eye, you will go down better at Oxford than the son, for instance, of a highly-placed civil servant who works behind the scenes. The son of an Edgar Wallace would be more eagerly courted than the son of an Equerry.

Inverted Snobbery

A nobleman's son is generally assumed to have no brains at all. It is curious that a title is not a real asset at Oxford unless its owner can prove he has charm and ability in spite of it. As for foreign princelings and nobility they are treated with an amused tolerance and it is openly hinted that their titles are bogus. One Juristman prince found it to his advantage to give up using his title.

But if you have a well-known father you will have the cat's paw everywhere. There are certain young men who make a hobby of collecting as large an acquaintance among the sons of the great as the capacity of their purses allows.

Of course, it cuts the other way as well. The slightest forwardness on the part of a son of the great and he is instantly accused of "trading on his father's name"—one of the unwritten sins of Oxford. There is a polite assumption that you are not making capital out of your name unless you mention your father. That is suicidal, for it arouses all the latent jealousy, and unless you are an experienced hand at disarming it, you may suffer.

Unless they make fools of themselves, Oxford is one vast conspiracy to give the sons of the great a good time. It is their best club.

BE CAREFUL!

(By Edward Kelly, C. A. D.)

AND now they tell us that wireless programmes, once on the air, stay there and that in 2,000 A.D. we will be able to tune in to a programme broadcast in 1932.

Worse than that. They say that we'll be able to tune in to the year 4,000 B.C. and hear what Adam said to Eve during the terrible fig leaf shortage that year.

Up to a point, we are all in favour of this scientific advance.

Wouldn't it be nice if in 50 years' time, ZBW could broadcast the first debates in the Legislative Council on the Shing Mun dam proposals, following a running description of how the King, who was present by television, declared it well and truly open.

(Say it Softly.)

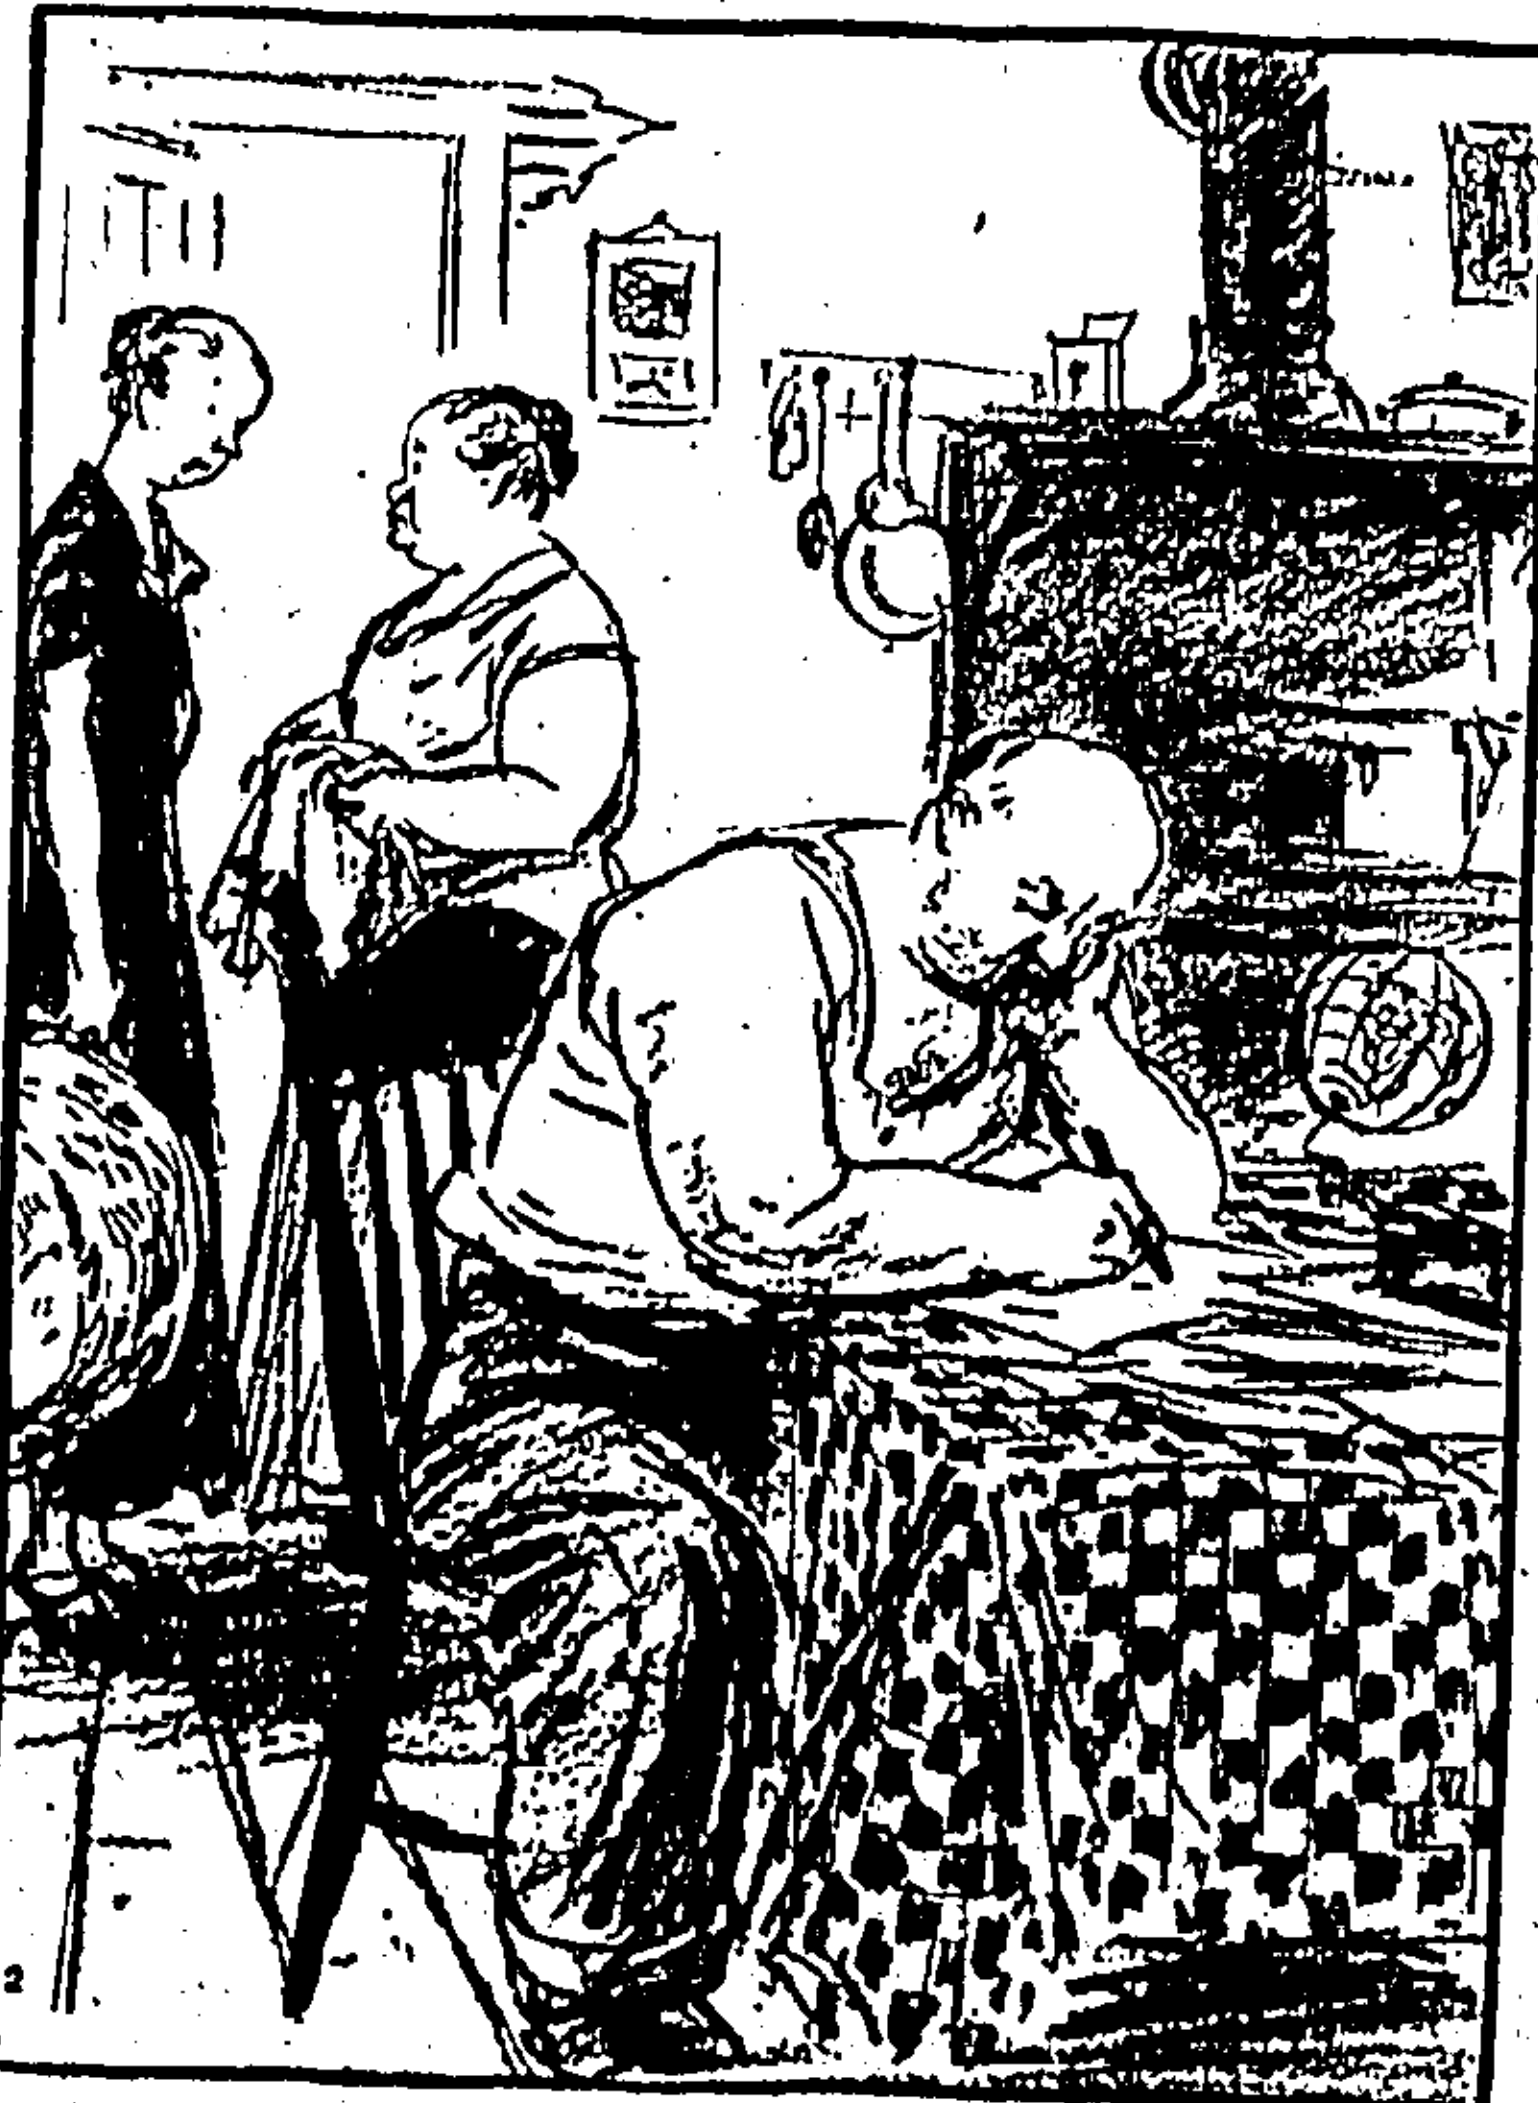

We'd like to know the classic phrases employed by Hannibal, when he kicked his toe crossing the Alps. We'd like to hear the billing and cooing of Anthony and Cleo, and compare their style with Robert Montgomery and one of his girl friends.

Yes, we would like to hear lots of things. We have often wondered what Mrs. Pharoah said to Mr. Pharoah when he built his pyramid on her bed of geraniums. We'll lay the odds it was something good.

But the line must be drawn somewhere. It would be just too bad if in the year 2000 A.D. when we are sitting by the radio with Mrs. Kelly, and the full and complete story comes out of our experience with the barmaid in 1932 when we were home on leave.

There is a grain of hope left, however.

We'll probably be dead by then. Hooley.

"I'm a little worried about him. He's figuring out how he could fly around the world in four days."

MARKET FOKI
SENTENCEDPECULIAR ASSAULT INCIDENT

Should a butcher wear a white jacket, if he so desires? The question appears frivolous, but on its answer depends the meaning of a serious happening at the Central Market yesterday morning, when a Chinese was assaulted by three others and severely wounded over one eye with a chopper.

Attracted to the spot by the din consequent on the affray, Sergt. R. Davies was called upon to arrest one of the assailants, and to take to hospital the injured man, who was hurt on the forehead above the eyes by a chopper blow which went down to the bone. Fung Chee, the man alleged to have struck the blow, was charged before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court this morning.

His Worship asked what the cause of the trouble was, and all that Sergt. Davies could say was that it had something to do with a jacket.

The injured man, who had in the meantime had three stitches over one eye, explained that he was relating to a friend the tale of a butcher who went about wearing a white jacket, when Fung Chee, a market foki who was passing by at the moment, overheard the remark and thought he was the butt of it.

In answer to the charge, Fung Chee stated: "He meant me to hear the remark, and all I said was that if he did not like my wearing a white jacket, he could throw himself into the gutter and drown himself there."

"You know you might have killed him with the chopper," his Worship pointed out.

Defendant denied having used any deadlier weapon than a wooden clog.

His Worship sentenced defendant to fourteen days' hard labour without the option on a charge of assault, ordered him to pay $5 compensation to the complainant, or to undergo a further week's imprisonment in default, and, finally, to sign a bond of $50 to keep the peace.

ALLEGED FRAUDS
ON FIRMWARRANT OF ARREST ISSUED

According to police reports, a series of alleged frauds covering a period of nearly seven years, and totalling nearly $18,500, the victims being the Hongkong branch of the Sheng To Weaving Factory, has been brought to light.

As a consequence, a warrant has been issued for the arrest of Tsui Wai-cheung, sales manager at the local branch. He is described as being 35 years of age, 5 feet 6 inches in height, and of medium build, having a pale complexion, with the appearance of an opium smoker. He is a native of Soochow.

Tsui is wanted for the alleged embezzlement of $18,237.98 from the office between November, 1925, and September this year.

The police report that Peter Dillon, aged 12, a Kowloon schoolboy, sustained slight injuries to his face when he alighted from a Kowloon Motor Bus Co., vehicle yesterday in Sai Kung Road, Kowloon City. The lad was taken to the Kowloon Hospital for treatment.

A similar accident was reported from the Sham Shui Po district last night, where Ho Mui (21), an employee of the Nam Chan Shop, Fuk Wah Street, jumped from a China Motor Bus Co. vehicle, receiving internal injuries. He was removed to the Kwong Wah Hospital.

CHINA'S TRAIN
FERRYSUCCESSION, LAUNCH AT NEWCASTLE

London, Oct. 12. China's first train ferry, costing $70,000, was launched at Water-on-Times today, the ceremony being performed by Mrs. Kuo Tai-chi, wife of the Chinese Minister to London.

The vessel is 372 feet long, with a dead weight of 1,550 tons and was named Changkiang.

It will be used for conveying trains over the Yangtze River from Nanking to Pukow. It is capable of carrying three trains with a total of twenty-one wagons.

OTTAWA PACTS

ments with the Dominions whose interests are affected.

IMMEDIATE ADVANTAGE.

In regard to the modification of the import duties in Dominions on articles imported from Britain, full particulars are given of the new rates to be imposed.

In regard to Canada, these modifications apply to some 215 items, of which, in 132 cases, the duties on United Kingdom goods are to be reduced and of which in 79 cases, such goods are for the first time to enjoy freedom from customs duty.

On the basis of last year's trade, over 40 per cent. of imports from the United Kingdom into Canada will enjoy immediately an advantage of lower customs duties than those previously in force, goods to the value of over eight million dollars being admitted free of customs duty.

MINIMUM PREFERENCES.

The agreement with Australia provides that, subject to Tariff Board recommendations, United Kingdom goods will enjoy certain minimum preferences graded according to the duties chargeable upon them.

The minimum margin of the preference will range from 15 per cent. ad valorem when the duty on United Kingdom goods is up to 19 per cent. ad valorem, to 20 per cent. preference where the duty is 20 per cent. but the maximum duty rate must not exceed 75 per cent.

Preferences exceeding those resulting from the application of the formula remain at the existing level subject to certain minor reservations.

Certain prohibitions on British imports are withdrawn and the removal of surcharges and primage duties is promised as soon as practicable.

MEAT CONTROL.

An important feature of the Australian agreement has reference to arrangements for the regulation of imports into Britain of frozen and chilled meat.

It provides, inter alia, for Australia limiting the export of frozen mutton and lamb to Britain in 1933 to an amount equivalent to that so exported in the year ending June 20th last.

Meanwhile, the United Kingdom Government will arrange with the Australian Government for the regulation of the importation of foreign meat in accordance with an agreed programme and for the quantitative regulation of supplies of bacon and hams coming on the United Kingdom market.

1933 CONSULTATION.

The Government will consult, in 1933 on the best means of securing an improved price situation and a more orderly marketing of the supplies.

Britain already enjoys a very large proportion of the New Zealand trade. By the agreement, the Dominion undertakes not to increase the primage duty, to lower still further the existing duties, to abolish the surtax on British goods and to modify certain basic import duties.

OTHER AGREEMENTS.

New and increased margins of preferences on United Kingdom goods are granted by the South African agreement affecting ten million pounds worth of trade of which Britain hitherto supplies two millions.

Hitherto Newfoundland has not adopted the principle of Imperial Preferences but its agreement provides, as from July next, for preferences of 10 per cent. on a wide range of goods, subject to certain reservations.

India absorbs about ten per cent. of Britain's total exports but hitherto Britain has had no customs advantages. Preferences are now proposed on articles in which the total trade last year was $34.9 million of which Britain supplied $14.3 millions.

Astrology—the Cinderella of the Sciences—has made a brief appearance before the British Association at York.

Psychologists and educationists were discussing ways of testing the abilities of young people entering the industrial world when a voice from the back of the hall asked: "Have you given any consideration to the astrological indications of a person's character?"

The speaker was Mr. Guest, of Birmingham. He told a reporter that astrologers have a horoscope of the King's and he added: "They foretold exactly when the

ST. PAUL'S IS TILTING OVER—BUT VERY
SLOWLYCOUNTY HALL MOVES
WITH THE TIDES

"St. Paul's is gradually tilting over." So Captain T. E. Longfield, of H. M. Ordnance Survey, stated in a paper to the Engineering Section of the British Association.

Other points in the paper were: County Hall moves up and down with the tides.

The Bank of England exhibits "disturbing behaviour."

Railway tunnels under the river go egg-shaped at high tide.

Captain Longfield said that when Britain first arose "from out the azure main" her cliffs were at least 70 feet higher than they were to-day. Britain was sinking again to sea level at the rate of nine inches every hundred years.

The Bank of England was the centre of a large subsidence. "On comparing the 1895 level with that of 1931 it is seen that a definite subsidence commences at Paddington and continues as far east as Limehouse, where it disappears," he said. "The maximum subsidence is over 0.6 of a foot at the Bank of England."

He also referred to land movements associated with the rise and fall of the tides. "A seismograph in the County Hall, Westminster," he said, "has shown a definite movement of the building corresponding with high and low tides."

"Waterloo Bridge sinks at high tide and rises again at low tide, owing to the compression due to the weight of the water."

Sinking at the Bank.

St. Paul's Cathedral is also gradually sinking, Captain Longfield declared.

"Each separate levelling," he said, "shows that St. Paul's has sunk relatively at three points. From 1895 to 1914 the mean relative subsidence was almost exactly 0.1 of a foot, and in the period 1914 to 1932 the mean was again 0.1. The east end of the Cathedral appears to have sunk more than the west end."

What was described as the "disturbing behaviour of the Bank of England" was also discussed, and Captain Longfield said that the building had sunk a total of .587 of a foot in the last 68 years.

EMPLOYEE SUES
FIRMOFFICE QUARRELS ALLEGED

Claims totalling $511.25 in respect of salary, commissions and travelling expenses were made against the Hanovia Quartz Lamp Co., 10, Queen's Road Central, by H.C. Yuen, 165, Third Street, at the Supreme Court this morning before the puisne Judge (Mr. Justice Wood).

Mr. W. C. Hung, of Deacons, appeared for plaintiff and Mr. F.C.E. Rendall for the defendants.

Mr. Hung, outlining the case for plaintiff, stated that the claim was for $431.25 in respect of salary, commissions and travelling expenses due from defendants for June, July, August and September, and a further claim of passage and travelling expenses for plaintiff's return to Shanghai, an expense not yet incurred. Plaintiff was originally employed with the defendant firm in Shanghai and was transferred to the Hongkong office in April of this year.

When plaintiff arrived, he did not get on very well with the Manager, Mr. Williams, and the two were continually having disputes. On June 20th, notice was given to him that he would be transferred soon to Shanghai, but the notice was not given in writing. Pending arrangements for his transfer to Shanghai, plaintiff continued to attend at the office.

ASSAULT ALLEGED.

On July 13th, following a dispute with the Manager plaintiff was assaulted and received various injuries, as a consequence of which he had to receive medical attention.

His Lordship:—Has that assault been the subject of proceedings?

Mr. Hung:—No.

Mr. Hung, continuing, said since July 13th, plaintiff had received nothing further on account of his salary and commission. He did not attend at the office after July 13th.

The case is proceeding.

King's illness was coming, and what is even more significant, they knew when he would recover."

BRAVE WOMAN
HONOUREDSTRUGGLE WITH ARM-ED MAN IN HOSPITAL

The London Gazette recently announced that the King had approved the award of the medal of the Civil Division of the Order of the British Empire to Miss Emma Jose Townsend for gallantry.

The official account in the Gazette states that on May 9, W. J. Yeoman, a farmer, Kingsbridge, South Devon, murdered a nine-years-old son in South Hams Cottage Hospital, Kingsbridge.

The boy was an inmate under treatment, and Yeoman attacked him as he lay in bed, first firing at him with a gun and then striking him with it several times.

Miss Townsend, who was visiting her sister at the hospital, heard cries of "help," and went into the ward. She showed great courage in trying to prevent the killing of the boy, and behaved most gallantly.

In the struggle Yeoman struck her with the barrel of the gun, and cut her head open. It was necessary afterwards to stitch up the wound, and she lost a quantity of blood.

Yeoman, who appeared at Exeter Assizes in June, charged with murder, was found guilty but insane, and ordered to be detained during his Majesty's pleasure.

Mr. Justice Charles, who heard the case, remarked that Miss Townsend had acted with great courage.

ITALY TO FEED
HERSELFYEAR'S WHEAT CORP
SUFFICIENT

The announcement made by the Italian Minister of Agriculture that the wheat crop this year is 72,000,000 bushels, the largest crop ever recorded in Italy, has excited enthusiasm among the agricultural population and those who took an active part in the government wheat campaign in the last eight years.

It is a remarkable achievement which makes Italy almost self-supporting in this commodity. The Fascist Government and Mussolini, the initiator of the campaign, have literally secured the bread of life for the entire nation, and when it is considered that Italy is the land of spaghetti, that its teeming population lives on spaghetti as the national food, the enthusiasm of the people is understood.

Italy needs about 80,000,000 bushels of wheat a year. A national congress has been called to discuss further measures for making the production suffice entirely for the nation.

The first step in the new propaganda was taken when recently 1,500 meetings were called in rural districts, and the farmers listened to speeches explaining the utility of artificial fertilisers. The need of making a selection of seed and of cultivating the most prolific varieties of corn was also indicated.

CHICAGO'S FAIR
NAMEMAYOR'S VIGOROUS DEFENCE

Mr. Anton J. Cermak, the Mayor of Chicago vigorously defended the reputation of his home City, and contrasted it with London, when speaking at a luncheon of the American Chamber of Commerce in London.

"Probably the majority of you," he said, "have been led to believe that Chicago reeks with criminals. That is not a fact. According to the Federal Government's statistics, Chicago is 62nd in the list of American cities, with a population of more than 100,000. Only nine of the other large American cities have less crime than Chicago. As to gangsters, Chicago ranks eleventh in the per capita murder rate. If Chicago were a city of terror it would be first, second, or third in that list, but only two of the largest cities have fewer murders per capita."

"Chicago is really as safe a city in which to live as London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, or any of the large cities in Europe."

The Mayor added that their police force had been reorganised, and while gangsters had done a lot of killing, they had been killing a lot of gangsters.

"Gangsters," said Mr. Cermak, "are a product of Prohibition. They are 'hoodlums,' the biggest evils in the city. But we are clearing them up."

INDIAN GAOL
COMEDYCONGRESS DUPES AND FORMER LEADERS

The prison statistics for the two important gaols of Yeravda and Visapur in the Bombay Presidency, both of which are largely used for Congress prisoners, show that the civil disobedience movement is a sectional one.

At Yeravda, with nearly 1,400 prisoners, and at Visapur, with nearly 1,700 prisoners, 95 per cent. are Hindus, while the remaining 5 per cent. are drawn from all other communities. The convicts at Visapur seem to be mostly those employed by Congress at a wage.

Twenty per cent. of those in the prison who were arrested in Bombay City have been recognised as criminals, with as many as nine or ten previous convictions under the ordinary law. A large number have also been convicted for criminal offences in other Provinces.

Most of the offences committed by prisoners in gaol, such as assaulting refusal to work, or destroying prison property, originate in the threats and abuse of the paid "volunteers" against their former leaders who have brought them to their present pass.

The Superintendent of the gaol has been requested by the respectable Congress prisoners to give the rowdies special remissions so as to get rid of them as soon as possible and restore harmony in the prison!

HELEN SAINTSBURY'S
LONELY END

London, Sept. 8.

Miss Helen Saintsbury, the actress, whose husband, Mr. F. J. B. Rutherford, committed suicide a month ago, was found shot dead yesterday in her flat in St. Martin's Lane, W.C.

It is believed that she died on Saturday night, a month to the day since her husband, the son of a baronet, was found dead, wearing evening dress, in his car at Michel-dever (Hampshire).

Mrs. Rutherford, too, died in evening dress—with her husband's old love letters strewn around her and a large volume and her diary, containing jottings of her honeymoon, lying open on the bed.

Clutched in her left hand was a letter.

There was a bullet wound in her head.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Daumont Hall, a picturesque village near Heabourn on the Hemel Hempstead road, where, according to the local gossip "nothing ever happens," was provided with the tariff of its lifetime when a B.I.P. unit, under the direction of Lupino Lane, selected it as the site for an exciting scene in "The Love Race," showing at the Queen's. The villagers saw a taxi containing two men being driven down a hill towards the level crossing, approaching the closed gates at breakneck speed. They also saw an L.M.S. passenger train, less than 50 yards away, tearing towards the spot. They watched the policeman at the gates waving his arms frantically at the taxi-driver and then their hearts missed a beat for he was forced to leap aside as the car rushed by to its apparent destruction. The taxi dashed through the first of the gates and then burst through the second as a moment later the train thundered by. But the accident was all according to plan as those watchers who did not already know soon discovered. The speed of the train and that of the taxi had been worked out (with the weight of the taxi as another factor in the mathematical formula) so that on the second the last gate was wrecked the train was due to dash by.

The passengers in the taxi for this scene were Stanley Lupino and Jack Hobbs who had already kept their seats through a crash into a barn and a haystack. The driver was Arty Ashe. Stanley Lupino and Jack Hobbs in the film are supposed to be rival drivers in a race using cars manufactured by their respective fathers. They had hired the taxi to get them to the track, but arrive as the winning car passes the post.

"The Passionate Plumber."

Are there any plumbers in France? If so, what do they wear and how do they act? These were a few of the aggravating questions which bothered the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer research department during filming of "The Passionate Plumber" in which Buster Keaton and Jimmy Durante join hands to raise merriment in a riotous French bedroom farce.

In this comedy, which will be shown at the Queen's Theatre on Sunday, Keaton plays the role of a plumber who gets into hilarious difficulties repairing bathtubs in ladies' apartments. He had to be shown in a regulation French plumbing shop with all the necessary equipment at an authentic background. The well-known lack of plumbing facilities in some of the largest buildings in France presented grave doubts as to whether or not an official bathroom expert existed in the country. The archives were searched thoroughly until by chance a picture was located showing one of the rare French technicians at work. The mystery was solved. He wore long baggy trousers, a small apron and a beret. His tools were carried in a case strongly resembling a medical kit. Above all, his attitude was that of a professional man making a call. Keaton's makeup and wardrobe for the picture was patterned closely after this authentic French original.

Heartbreak

Love greater than the desire for fame and more powerful than the fear of death is portrayed by Charles Farrell, co-starred with Madge Evans in "Heartbreak," thrilling Fox drama of Romance showing at the Oriental Theatre to-day. The film version was made from Llewellyn Hughes' recent popular magazine story, adapted in continuity and dialogue by William Conselman and directed by Alfred L. Werker. The drama deals with the romance of a young American diplomat, Charles Farrell, and a beautiful Viennese countess, Madge Evans, who meet and fall in love during American neutrality. The last featured player is John Arledge, as Farrell's American buddy, Claude King and John St. Polis and also in the cast.

NEW SERVICE TO U.S.

JUTLANDIA INAUGURATES PACIFIC-ORIENTAL RUN.

A large number of prominent ship-owners and local merchants attended a reception held on board the motor vessel Jutlandia between 2 and 6 p.m. yesterday afternoon, on the occasion of the inauguration by the East Asiatic Company and the Chinese American Shipping Company of their Pacific Oriental Service.

The ship, which has been flag-logged since its arrival in Hongkong on Tuesday, presented a spic and span appearance as the interested visitors were escorted over her. Surprisingly luxurious for a cargo vessel is the passenger accommodation aboard, and the cabins, each with private bathroom and sitting room, were responsible for much favourable comment.

The Jutlandia is a twin screw steamer of 6,500 tons gross, and is propelled by twin Diesel engines. The ship differs from other vessels inasmuch as it is without a funnel, the exhaust from the engines being carried astern through thin exhaust pipes. The modern conveniences for quick loading and unloading of cargo include electric cranes, their almost eerie silence being another feature of this ship. During the afternoon a practical demonstration of cargo handling was arranged for the guests aboard the ship.

The Jutlandia leaves Hongkong today on the maiden voyage across the Pacific to San Francisco. Ports of call en transit include Shanghai, Seattle, Vancouver and Portland. The trip from Hongkong to San Francisco will take only 25 days.

The new service is being jointly operated by the Chinese American Shipping Company (Hong Kong Agents) and the East Asiatic Company Ltd. (John Manners & Co.)

LOCAL WEDDINGS

WELL KNOWN CHINESE FAMILIES UNITED

A wedding of considerable interest in Chinese circles took place at the Registry Office yesterday afternoon, when Miss Lim Him-luen was married to Mr. Peck Plai-jim. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lim Peng-mau, and a niece of Mr. Ke Leung-hoe, the well known local banker; while the bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Peck Plai-tien.

After the ceremony the party adjourned to the Lane Crawford Restaurant. The best men were Messrs. Liang Tze-wnh and Teng Tin-kau, and the bridesmaids, Misses Violet and Lily Ko. A prominent gathering of guests were present at the reception.

The Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall proposed the happiness of the happy couple and in a bright speech wished them health and prosperity. The Lane Crawford orchestra rendered a programme of music while tea was served.

Kowloon Ceremony

There was a large attendance on Saturday afternoon at the wedding of Sergeant James Scrim, of the Hongkong Police, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Scrim, of Warrington, Scotland, to Miss Elizabeth Davidson, eldest daughter of Mr. William Davidson and the late Mrs. Davidson, of London, and formerly of Dundee. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Allen at the Kowloon Union Church, and the service was choral, with Mrs. P. Short at the organ.

The bride looked charming in a dress of white lace with a shell-pink underlip, and slippers to match, her veil being arranged with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of pink and white Honolulu creepers. The bride was given away by Chief Inspector Paterson of the H.K. Police.

Miss Joyce Paterson was the bridesmaid, and she was dressed in a pretty costume of lido blue, with cap to match, trimmed with shell-pink and blue forget-me-nots. It was made by Eunice. She carried a bouquet of pink and white Honolulu.

Mr. G. Perkins, of the H.K. Police, discharged the duties of best-man.

A reception was subsequently held at the Police Training School, where the happy couple were the recipients of a host of good wishes.

The bride's going-away dress was a creation of brown and blue voile, with hat to match.

"Ship them VIA SEATTLE, then! The sooner they arrive, the sooner we can sell them!" And the buyer was pleased to learn of the short United States route from the Orient to American markets.

CEMENT PLOT

JAPANESE PRODUCT IN GREEN ISLAND BAGS.

The Green Island Cement Company were the complainants in a case heard before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon when three Chinese, Li Sang, Shek On and Li Kam-tung, were summoned for infringing the Trade Mark Ordinance.

Mr. O. E. C. Marton appeared on behalf of the Cement Company, while Mr. J. D. Prentiss was for the three defendants.

Outlining the case for the prosecution, Mr. Marton said the summonses were taken out as a result of information received by the Green Island Cement Company following a notice advertised in two Chinese newspapers offering a reward of $100 to any person or persons who could give information leading to the arrest of any person or persons unlawfully using the trade mark of the Company.

This notice was inserted in the Chinese newspapers on October 8 and on the following day, the Company received information that two junks were lying at Shamshui with bags of cement bearing the marks of the Company. It was alleged at the same time that the cement was not the kind manufactured by the Company.

On receiving this information, Mr. T. C. T. Beck, of the Company, together with another European, went over to Shamshui where they found these two junks lying near the Shamshui Military Camp. The crew of these junks, on seeing the approach of Mr. Beck and his companion, fled. In vain Mr. Beck called upon them to stop, and he had to go to the Shamshui Police Station for assistance.

Police Search.

Detective Sergeant Goodwin, to whom Mr. Beck made a report of the affair, detailed a Chinese detective to the spot to watch the junks with the view to ascertaining the owners of the craft. The Chinese detective would say that the second and third defendants were the owners of the junks.

A search of the junks made by the Police later in the day revealed 200 bags of cement on board. Evidence would be given that this cement was not the cement manufactured by the Green Island Cement Company but was of an inferior quality probably costing about $1.20 per bag, whereas the price of the Company's cement was $3.25 per bag.

Mr. Prentiss, at this point, remarked that he admitted that the cement found on the junks was not manufactured by the Green Island Cement Company, but was of Japanese origin. He also admitted that the bags found on the junks possibly originated from the Company.

Mr. Beck, in the witness-box, testified that he inserted a notice in the Chinese newspapers offering a reward for information leading to the arrest of people infringing the trade mark of the Company. This notice was inserted on October 8. On the 9th, he received information as a result of which he went to Shamshui where he found two junks containing bags of cement. The numbers of these junks were T151311 and 562V. There were about six men and some women on 562V, but on seeing him, the men left hurriedly. He called on them to stop, but they did not do so. He accordingly went to the Shamshui Police Station and reported the matter. A Chinese detective was then sent out to watch the junks.

Summonses Taken Out.

Witness went back to Shamshui in the afternoon and found Li Sang. In due course, he took out summonses against this man Li Sang and the two owners of the junks.

He attended the Police search of the junks and saw that No. T151311 contained a full load of cement, about 200 bags in all. He noticed that all these bags bore the mark of the Green Island Cement Company. On the other junk, there was a quantity of cement.

VON GRONAU DELAYED

AEROPLANE UNDER REPAIR IN RANGOON

Rangoon, Oct. 12.

Repairs to his aeroplane will delay for about five days the departure of Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, the German aviator who was rescued by the British trawler Karamola—Our Own Correspondent.

Capt. von Gronau, the German round-the-world flier, was forced down in the Indian Ocean, but was rescued and arrived at Rangoon.

Twenty bags which did not bear their mark.

Altogether 206 bags of cement were seized by the Police.

Evidence was given by Sergeant Goodwin of the search, and by a Chinese detective, Li Ming, of watching the junks.

The Defence.

In his defence, Mr. Prentiss said his case was that Li Sang, the first defendant, was an employee of a man named Li Cheung, who recently returned to China from Singapore. Li Cheung wanted to build a house at Waichow, near Canton, for his own use and occupation, and for the purpose of building this house, he sent Li Sang to Hongkong to purchase cement, giving him $1,000.

Li Sang accordingly came down to Hongkong and purchased, through a man named Ho Tak, 602 bags of Japanese cement. At the time of the sale, Ho Tak informed him that in view of the embargo on Japanese goods in Canton, it would be impossible to get the cement through with the present Japanese marks attached to the bags. For the purpose of getting this cement through, Li Sang had arranged for the cement to be transferred from the Japanese bags into ones bearing the marks of the Green Island Cement Company. The transfer was made on the two junks on the morning of October 7 and it happened that the Police arrived later in the day.

"No Infringement."

Mr. Prentiss submitted that that could not be called an infringement of the Trade Mark Ordinance. He submitted that no offence was committed under the Ordinance as he would prove that no sale was intended, and therefore there could be no intent to defraud the public. Trade, he submitted, meant an offer to the public, either by exchange or sale, and there was nothing of the sort in the present case. The first defendant Li Sang had been sent down by his master from Canton to purchase cement for the erection of his own building, and there was no intention of selling the cement.

After hearing the evidence of the defence, which corroborated Mr. Prentiss' outline, his Worship said on the facts of the case he could not believe the story of the defence. He held that the first defendant had not discharged the onus which was on him to show that he would not defraud any prospective purchasers.

Mr. Prentiss argued that if there was no embargo on Japanese goods in Canton, the cement would have been taken up to Canton without having to be transferred into bags belonging to the Green Island Cement Company.

His Worship ruled against him, however, and convicted the first defendant of applying a false trade description to his goods, and being in possession of goods which bore a false trade mark. The second and third defendants were convicted of the latter charge only.

The first defendant was fined $100 or six weeks on the first charge and $50 or one month on the second, in addition to paying costs of $200, while the second and third defendants were fined $100 each with the alternative of six weeks' hard labour.

THE RECTOR OF STIFFKEY

CHASED BY A CROWD

The Rector of Stiffkey, the Rev. H. Davidson, his manager, and Mr. Luke Cannon, the showman, figured in a remarkable scene at Blackpool last night in the vicinity of the Central Beach, in which, earlier in the week, the Rector had been exhibited.

Following the police ban on the barrel exhibition and the court proceedings which followed, the Rector was exhibited in a building opposite the barrel.

He was seated behind a side door, and when this became known several thousand people collected and made the roadway impassable. People were admitted through a door and passed out of another door two yards away. The Rector spoke to each person who entered, but within a few minutes there was such a press against the door that the police had to intervene.

Meanwhile the Rector, his manager, and Mr. Cannon left by a side door and ran towards the rear of the Promenade building where the Rector is staying.

When the crowd saw them they made a dash for the Rector, but he reached the door before the crowd overtook him, and the door was later locked and barred.

CONVICTS WIRE PRISON
METAL WORKS SET UP.

A party of long-term convicts at Chelmsford Prison are engaged on wiring the whole of the goal for electricity. They are under the supervision of a staff electrician. Hitherto gas has been used for lighting and heating.

Other convicts in the prison have just completed the construction of a large brick and concrete workshop in the grounds, which they have named the Tinsmith. In it they will be taught a useful trade in preparation for their return to civil life.

The whole of the work has been carried out by the prisoners, under the personal supervision of the Governor, Major G. L. Phillips. The men will be trained by qualified instructors.

The output of the workshop, which will include cooking pans, dustbins, and other tin and enamel goods, will be sent for use in other prisons all over the country and in various Government Departments.

M.P. Spends Week-end in PoorhouseMR. D. M. FOOT'S
EXPERIMENT

London, Sept. 8.
Mr. Dingle M. Foot, M.P. for Dundee, passed the week-end in a Dundee poorhouse in disguise, unknown either to the officials in charge or to the numerous inmates.

Some time ago Mr. Foot received a communication signed by several inmates of the East House Poor Law Institution in reference to the conditions there. He replied that he would take the first opportunity of looking into the conditions for himself.

Believing that the best way to do this would be to enter the institution in disguise, he was admitted on Saturday night as a bona-fide applicant under the name of Donald Macintosh.

He remained there until yesterday morning.

Mr. Foot received the usual set of clothes, and passed two nights in a dormitory, along with 11 other inmates, and received the same food and treatment as the others, none of whom had any idea of his identity.

In an interview last night Mr. Foot said he must not speak on so short an experience about the conditions, but, so far as he was concerned, he had nothing to complain of. The accommodation was clean, the food sufficient, and his fellow inmates were most friendly.

CLAIMS TO £3,600,000 ESTATE.

Paris, Aug. 26.
Mr. Kooremann, an American lawyer from St. Louis, is now in Strasbourg, making inquiries concerning the legacies of an 18,000,000 dollar (£3,600,000) estate left by Mrs. Garrett, nee Henriett Schaeffer.

Most of the money was left by her father, Christopher Schaeffer, who emigrated from Alsace to the United States in 1870, and is believed to have direct descendants in Alsace.

The American Schaeffer claimants to the fortune are numerous, and Alsatian Schaeffers are not wanting in putting forward their claims.

MOCK BROADCAST
TRIALS

NO JUDGES OR K.C.S

The Law Society have informed the B.B.C. that there can be no removal of the ban on barristers and other members of the legal profession broadcasting in their own names.

This means that the B.B.C.'s hopes of including eminent K.C.'s, and even judges, to take part in mock broadcast trials must be abandoned.

Broadcasting House had hoped the Law Society would partially relax its regulations, but a letter has been received stating that members of the legal profession may broadcast only anonymously.

It has been pointed out by the B.B.C. that the voices of famous K.C.'s even when they broadcast anonymously, are frequently recognised.

The B.B.C. will not abandon the series of mock trials, but actors will take the parts of judge and counsel. Listeners are to be the jury.

SIR WILLIAM
JOWITTHOLIDAY LINER
COMEDY

Gibraltar, Sept. 7.

A dispute has been raging aboard the holiday cruise liner Otranto over the bounds of attire for sunbathing. Feeling has run highest on the topic of whether men can play deck-tennis stripped to the waist.

This came to a crisis yesterday off the Portuguese coast, when two determined revolutionaries tasted of the "forbidden" sport. The First Officer descended from the bridge to rebuke the miscreants. As for convention. One of the sun enthusiasts who confronted him was none other than the robust figure of Sir William Jowitt.

The most fashionable game aboard the Otranto is now called "strip-tennis."

Sir William, the former Attorney-General, is accompanied by Lady Jowitt and their nine-year-old daughter Penelope.

SECRETS OF THE OTTAWA PACTS MADE PUBLIC

BELFAST DISORDERS

TROOPS DRAFTED INTO CITY

STRIKE THREAT

LORD CRAIGAVON'S CHALLENGE

London, Oct. 12.

An armed peace is being preserved in Belfast. Troops have been brought in and posted strategically to deal with any serious outbreak of violence, while the police have been heavily reinforced.

Yesterday's rioting took place in the Nationalist quarter of Belfast. On more than one occasion to-day, the unemployed attempted further demonstrations. Rioting broke out at one or two points, but swift action by the police brought a restoration of order within a few minutes.

The police appear to have the situation well in hand, though the vigilance is not being relaxed in any way.

ALL POLICE ARMED.

Over three thousand police are now on duty. They have all been equipped with revolvers and rifles, while armoured cars are still patrolling the danger areas.

Seven lorries, loaded with officers and men of the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, armed with machine guns, have been drafted into the city, and they have set up posts in the main streets of the Nationalist quarter.

As a further precaution, the curfew order requiring all civilians to be off the streets between the hours of 11 p.m. and 5 a.m. is being maintained.

SEVENTY ARRESTS.

The police have been busy all through the day making raids on suspected premises. In the course of these surprise visits they have discovered quantities of arms and ammunition in the possession of civilians.

Seventy arrests have already been made.

Late last night, Renter's Belfast correspondent indicated that the city was quiet, most of the streets being deserted.

Lord Craigavon, in the course of a speech at a meeting of Belfast Unionists said:

"If mischief-makers have come to Belfast to create an Irish Republic, they will be disappointed."

He was not a man to be intimidated, he added.

STRIKE CALL.

The Belfast Trades Council has passed a resolution calling upon the Trade Unions to strike in sympathy with the relief workers, but it is considered unlikely that the Trade Union will concur, particularly as the local shipyards are hoping to secure remunerative orders shortly.

A conference has been opened with the Lord Mayor and other prominent Belfast citizens to consider applying scales of unemployment benefit similar to those prevailing in England.—Reuter and British Wireless.

PRINCES LEAVE SWEDEN

RECEIVE WELCOME IN DENMARK

London, Oct. 12.

The Prince of Wales and Prince George this afternoon flew in the Imperial Airways liner "Heracles" from Malmö, Sweden, via Hamburg to Copenhagen.

They were greeted by Prince and Princess Axel of Denmark.

Mr. Charles Corkran, son of a British General who with Mrs. Muriel Pawley, is a prisoner of bandits in Manchuria.

HONGKONG AND EMPIRE

DUTY ON FOREIGN CARS HINTED AT

OTTAWA SEQUEL

Cabled summaries forwarded by Renter to-day of the provisions of the Ottawa Agreements show that the Crown Colonies have been brought into the general scheme of preferences.

Ceylon will be invited to adopt the principle of Imperial Preference in respect of a number of Indian products, of which cotton, piece-goods are the most important.

At the same time, the Government of British Malaya will be invited to give India a preference in return for which India will grant preferences to certain colonial products.

HONGKONG'S PART.

Arrangements were made at Ottawa on behalf of all the Crown Colonies to provide for numerous increased preferences, but these are confined to motor vehicles in Hongkong and the Straits Settlements.

It is expected that the reduction of duty upon canned pineapples will benefit Malaya.

Numerous tropical products, including fruits from the West Indies and vegetable oils from West Africa are receiving preferences from the Dominion.

A PUZZLE.

The reference to increased preferences by Hongkong in respect of motor vehicles is confusing, inasmuch as at the present time this Colony grants no preferences on any commodities whatever.

It has been generally assumed that Hongkong would be very slightly affected by the Ottawa agreements, seeing that so little is produced locally which could enjoy reciprocal treatment in return for any preferences which the Colony might grant.

DUTABLE GOODS.

By its status as a distributing centre, Hongkong's prosperity has been built up on a free port policy, and it has been widely felt that any marked interference with this policy would be detrimental to the Colony's best interests.

The possibility of giving some slight preference on commodities already subjected to duty, such as wines, spirits, beer, tobacco, etc., has been mentioned, but there has been no indication of Hongkong adding to the list of dutiable articles.

LICENCE DIFFERENTIATION?

In regard to motor vehicles, amongst the suggestions made has been one that a higher licence fee might be imposed on foreign makes than on British vehicles, although it seems doubtful, if such a plan were adopted, whether it would be of any real value to British manufacturers.

Up to the present, the local authorities have not released any statement as to the precise manner in which Hongkong will be affected by the Ottawa Agreements.

MORE FOOD TAXES CERTAIN

BRITAIN'S RETURN

SECRETS OF THE OTTAWA AGREEMENTS were revealed by the United Kingdom Government last night. The wide range of the good taxes proposed explains the inability of the Samuelite Liberals to support the Government.

The Anglo-Canadian Agreement provides for a lower duty on forty per cent. of imports from the United Kingdom, while goods valued at G$8,000,000 will be admitted duty free each year.

British imports of foreign meats are to be drastically and progressively restricted. Australia gives a Preference to British goods ranging from 15 to 20 per cent.

South Africa imposes minimum specific duties on foreign goods, while certain British products are admitted duty free.

India gives a ten per cent. preference on 163 items, to which may be added cotton and artificial silk piece goods.

New Zealand is reducing all duties on British goods and Newfoundland is granting a ten per cent. preference on certain classes of goods.

Britain will impose duties on foreign butter, cheese, fruits, maize, wheat and so on.

PRINCIPAL POINTS IN AGREEMENTS

London, Oct. 12.

With publication to-night of the summary of the proceedings of the Imperial Conference at Ottawa, the terms of the schedules, which hitherto have been kept secret, mainly at the request of the Dominions, owing to the risks of forestalling, are revealed.

It is on the basis of the agreements and the schedules thereto, contained in this report, that legislation has been drafted which will be taken up by the House of Commons immediately Parliament reassembles on Tuesday next.

The legislation will be pressed forward with all speed, not only to prevent forestalling, but because under the Import Duties Act provision for the free entry of imports from the Dominions and the Colonies ceases on November 15th.

WORLD TRADE.

The report contains the terms of the agreements between the United Kingdom and the various Dominions and India and, in the opinion of the Government, the agreements greatly increase the opportunity of inter-imperial trading and represent an important step towards the restoration of world trade.

This over-riding consideration was expressed in a resolution passed by the Conference which declared that by the lowering of the removal of barriers among themselves, as provided for in the agreements, the flow of trade between the various countries of the Empire would be facilitated and that by the consequent increase of the purchasing power of their peoples, the trade of the world would also be stimulated and increased.

SAME GENERAL FORM.

The agreements with all the Dominions follow the same general form. Imports from the Empire countries into the United Kingdom fall into three classes, namely, those accorded entry free of duty subject to revision three years hence, those which are granted a preference through the reduction of specific duties on foreign goods, and those which receive a preference in virtue of the ten per cent. ad valorem duty on foreign goods imposed under the Import Duties Act.

In the first category are included eggs, poultry, butter, cheese and other milk products from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Newfoundland and Southern Rhodesia.

Foreign goods in the second category, respecting which Parliament will be asked to impose specific duties, are set out in the schedules to the agreements and include:

wheat in grain 2/- per quarter; butter 15/- per cwt; cheese 15 per cent ad valorem.

Schedules to the various agreements set out the details of the other proposed duties.

FRUIT DUTIES.

In the schedule to the Canadian agreement goods specified include apples, pears, canned apples, dried fruits, eggs, condensed milk.

Under the corresponding schedule of the Australian agreement are included in addition to the above, powdered milk, honey, raw oranges, grape fruits.

The New Zealand agreement makes no additions to this list, but the schedules attached to the South African agreement includes a number of specific duties to be imposed on foreign imports, of various other fruits, raw and canned, and also 10% ad valorem duty throughout the year on maize.

The only items specified in the corresponding schedule of the Newfoundland agreement are a duty on foreign cod liver oil of 1/4d per gallon and on chilled or frozen salmon of 1/4d per pound.

INDIA AGREEMENT.

Under the United Kingdom-Indian agreement which is subject to ratification in India, provision is made for the imposition of duties on foreign imports of wheat, rice, castor oil, magnesium, chloride, and linseed.

An undertaking is given by the United Kingdom Government not to reduce the existing general ad valorem duty of ten per cent. imposed under the Import Duty Act on a large class of foreign goods which are already enumerated in the special schedules to the agreement.

MANCHUKUO MYSTERY MISSION

Japanese Official to Visit Peking

Chanchun, Oct. 13.

Mr. Tokuzo Komi, a Councillor of the Manchukuo Government, is expected to visit Peking shortly in his private capacity, according to a statement issued to-day.

It is believed, however, that he is being given an important mission which is likely to bring a change in the political situation in North China.—Reuter.

DESPAIR OF 'BOOKIES'

NITSICHIN'S WIN AT NEWMARKET

GREAT STRUGGLE IN STRAIGHT

(Our Own Correspondent).

London, Oct. 12.

The King and Queen, the Princess Royal and the Earl of Harwood, were members of an exceptionally large crowd which to-day saw Nitsichin win the Cesarewitch in a magnificent race.

The winning horse is owned by Mr. D. Kennedy, a London stockbroker. Mr. A. Buxton's Chelmarsh, considered a good outside chance, occupied second place, and Lord Rosebery's Sandwich, last year's St. Leger winner and today's favourite, ran third.

NINTH INTO STRAIGHT

The going was good, but in the early stages of the race the sun made the colours of the jockeys indistinguishable and it was until the runners came into the straight that the positions could be accurately observed.

Claymore was first round the bend, with Chelmarsh, Roi de Paris, West Wicklow, Sandwich, Sandals, Son of Mint, Blue Vision and Nitsichin close on her heels in that order.

CLAYMORE BEATEN.

A quarter of a mile from home, Claymore was beaten, Chelmarsh having taken the lead with Roi de Paris, Claymore, Sandwich and Nitsichin following.

Nitsichin was running magnificently and shortly afterwards swept into second place and passing Chelmarsh on the rising ground won by three lengths.

HONGKONG NOT IN PICTURE.

There was a fine struggle between Chelmarsh and Sandwich for second place, but Chelmarsh fought off the challenge of Lord Rosebery's horse and gained the verdict by two lengths.

Roi de Paris was fourth, Blanche de Paris fifth, Sandals sixth and Popette, from Guernsey last.

The winner's time was three minutes, fifty-one and two-fifths seconds.

The bookmakers are despondent at the result, declaring that they would even have preferred a victory for Sandwich. Nitsichin was very heavily backed on all books.

FATE OF CHENG KWOK-YAU

A PETITION FOR CLEMENCY

CHINESE CUSTOMS

Over fifty of the most prominent Chinese residents of the Colony, under the leadership of a well-known Chinese merchant, have signed a petition which will be presented to the Government some time next week in an attempt to secure a commutation of the sentence on Cheng Kwok-yau, the rich young man condemned to death for procuring the death of George Fung.

Those who have signed the petition decline to disclose their names for good reasons, but it is understood that the petition is written in Chinese and was prepared by a learned Chinese scholar.

The plea for clemency advances the tender age of the condemned man and the fact that he and Lay Ming-fai were actually husband and wife in the eyes of Chinese, because they had lived together as man and wife for months, as reasons.

The petitioners plead that Chinese customs demand the severe punishment of offences such as the seduction of a man's wife. The petition has been translated into English for consideration by the authorities.

LATE NEWS. VOLUNTEER PERIL

GUERRILLA CAMPAIGN MAY COLLAPSE

LACK OF FOOD & CLOTHING

COMING OF THE WINTER

(Special to "Telegraph").

Peking, Oct. 13.

The collapse of the long guerilla campaign waged against Japan in Manchuria with a large degree of success is threatened.

More than three hundred thousand Chinese volunteers are reported to be operating in North Manchuria, harassing the Japanese at all points, rendering it impossible for the Manchukuo Government to claim any effective control over a vast area.

Now, it is startlingly revealed in despatches reaching Peking that these three hundred thousand men are faced with starvation and death this winter—soon to break—unless clothing and food is made available to them.

STUBBORN FIGHT.

For a year they have put up a stubborn resistance to Japanese domination in Manchuria. Time and again large groups have been broken up by the more efficient death-dealing weapons of the Japanese, but have reformed, taken in fresh recruits and have resumed their activities.

With the winter descending, however, they find they have got only summer uniforms and little food or ammunition.

SUPPLIES FAILING.

The bitter weather which settles down upon Manchuria must cause a collapse unless assistance is rendered quickly. During the past year, they have obtained their supplies mainly by raiding Manchukuo and Japanese supply depots, while food has been supplied to them by villagers.

Even succour in the way of food supplies from villagers is falling them already. Many of the villages are deserted and desolate wrecks owing to the continued warfare, and crops have not been planted.

There seems, at the moment, little prospect of getting sufficient winter clothing for this vast army, in which event it will be impossible for them to carry on the struggle.—Reuter.

STOP PRESS

London, Oct. 13.

The country has been shocked by the news of the murder of a Mrs. Woodruff which has not yet reached Hongkong.

The poignant circumstances of the outrage are related in the newspapers in heavy type with banner headlines.

The news was conveyed to her parents when her mother was sitting her father in a nursing home near Bristol, suffering from nervous breakdown. The whole family is prostrate with grief.—Reuter.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

The hands selected for publication usually contain a game contract which is either made or defeated by spectacular play. However, the majority of the hands played are commonplace. There are dozens of hands in which skillful play is required to make one, or two odd, besides the usual sprinkling of misfits which lead to disaster.

There is, however, one important difference in that each hand has an equal bearing on the final outcome. The defence must be on its toes every minute and cannot afford to play listlessly because the contract is an unimportant one. It is just as important to defeat a one bid as a grand slam.

♠A-K-8-7	♥Q-J	♦10-6-2	♣10-9-8-2
♠None	♥K-8-6-5	♦Q-J-8-7-5	♣K-7-5-4
NORTH	EAST	WEST	SOUTH
♠9-6-5-4-3-2	♥4-3-2	♦A-K-9	♣Q-3
♠Q-J-10	♥A-9-4-3-2	♦4-3	♣A-J-6

The Bidding.

A one-over-one player would not open the South hand in first position, but the particular player happened to be using a different system, so he opened with one heart. West passed and North bid one spade. This was perfectly satisfactory to South, and seeing no further need to continue the bidding, he passed and one spade became the final contract.

The Play.

East inferred from the bidding that North must have four spades and South three, which of course left none for his partner. Furthermore, his opponents had all the high spades between them and would try to make them separately if possible. Therefore he determined that his best defence was to lead a spade at every opportunity, compelling declarer to take each trick twice.

He led the deuce of spades, dummy played the ten spot, and when West discarded a small club the declarer knew that he was in for trouble. He overtook the first spade trick with the ace in his own hand and returned the ten of clubs, hoping to set up an extra trick or two in that suit.

East did not cover with the queen, and the trick went through to West's king. He returned a diamond, which East won with the king; then East continued his original plan by leading another small spade.

Declarer left the lead in dummy this time, and returned a diamond, hoping to get a ruff in that suit before dummy's trumps were exhausted. However, East again won the diamond trick, with the ace, and returned the third spade.

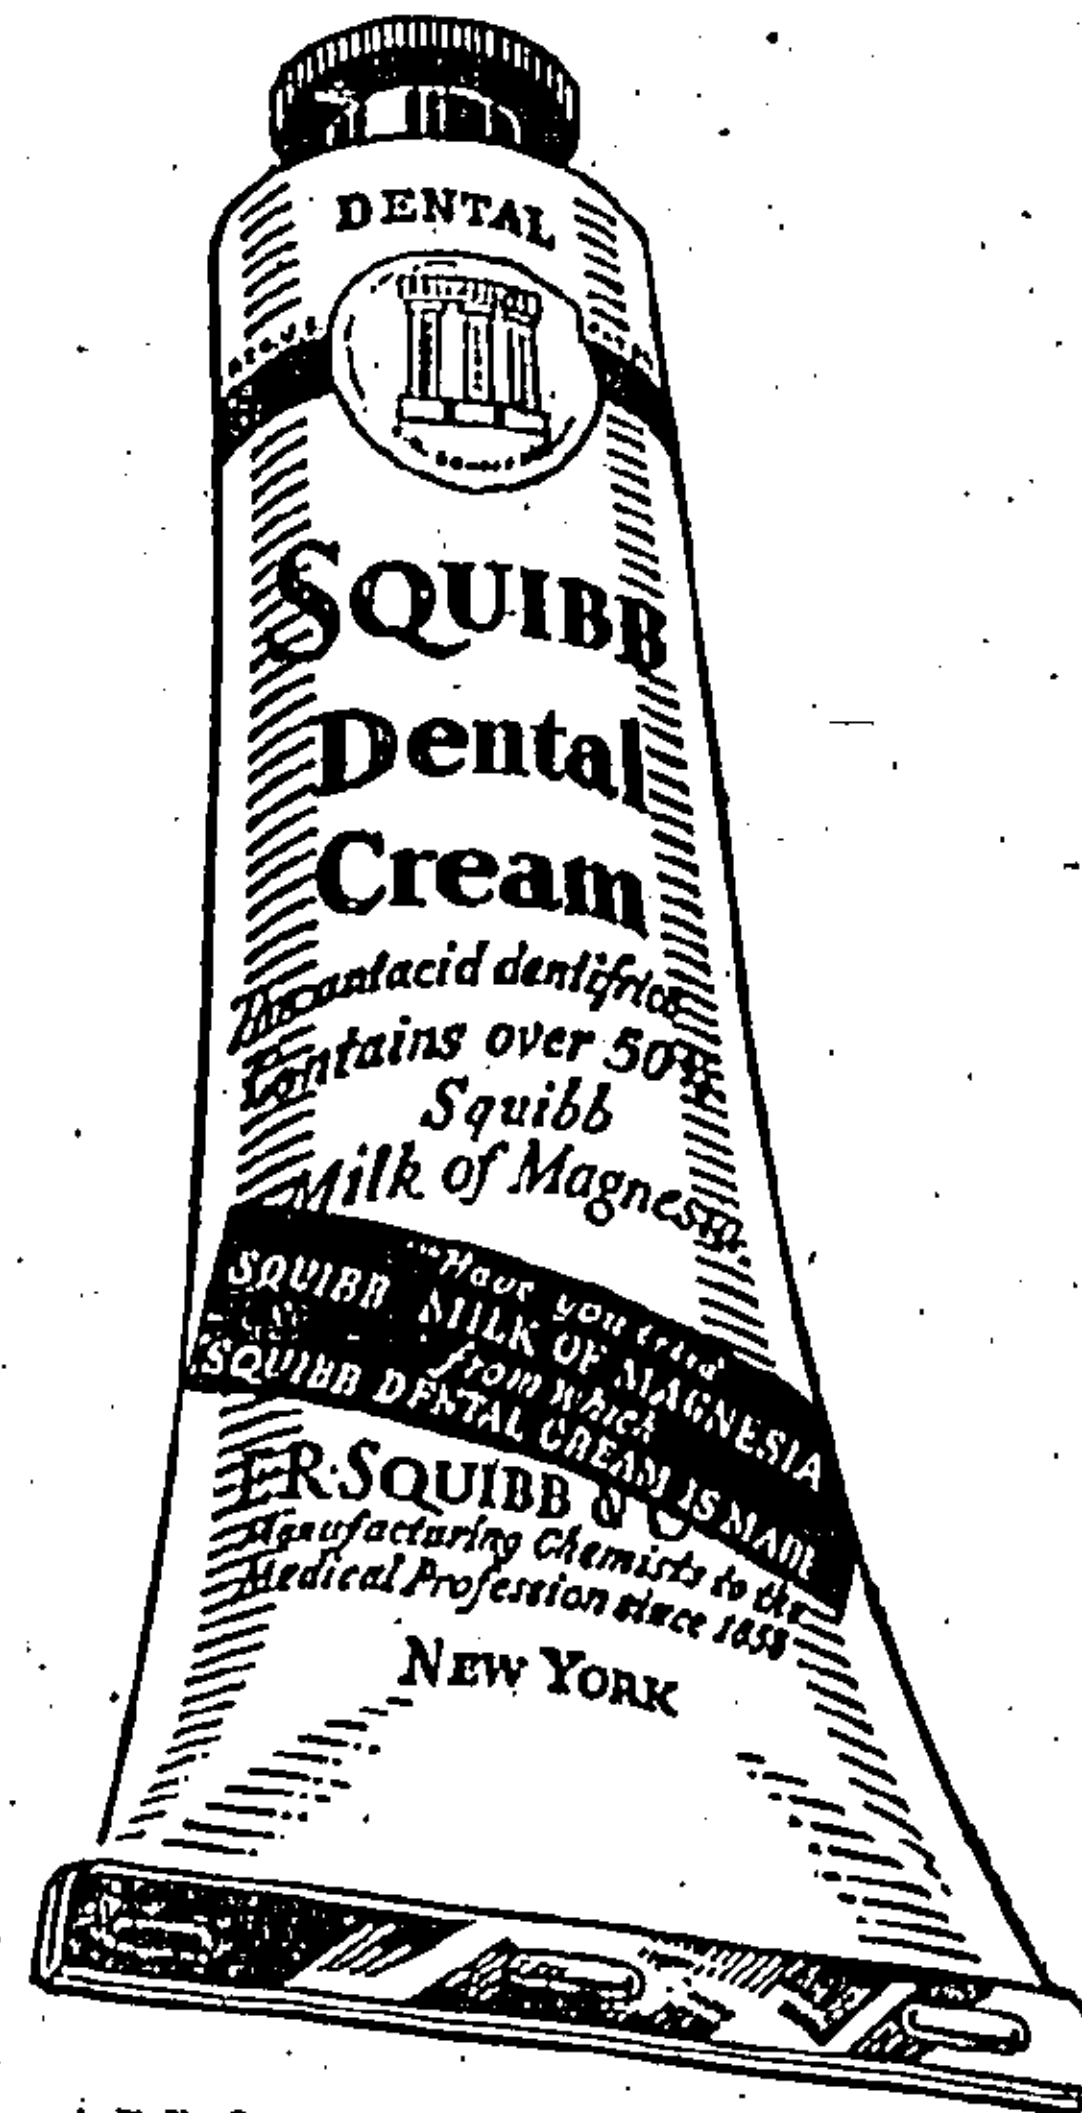

West discarded his last club. Declarer led the ace of clubs from dummy and followed with the jack, West discarding two hearts and East ruffing the last club trick.

The relentless barrage of spades was continued, putting declarer in the lead with the king. He still had a chance to make his contract if he could find the king of hearts in the East hand, so he decided to stake everything on that possibility. However, the finesse failed and he was down two tricks, rewarding East and West with a top score for their excellent defence.

SATURATION POINT

TO reach Saturation Point is the ambition of every manufacturer and producer. It signifies that the sales of his product have absorbed output. In these days not many products attain Saturation Point; production is generally greater than demand. It is not so with soft wood. Here Saturation Point is reached and passed; sufficient timber cannot be cut to cope with the world's needs. Moreover, forestry utilization has been brought to such a fine art that there are now over 4,600 proved uses for pine timber alone, such as is grown in selected areas in New Zealand.

In those fertile islands the N. Z. Perpetual Forests, Limited has evolved a scheme of afforestation which is putting pine tree (i.e. soft wood) growing on a practical and profitable basis.

To date over 85,000 investors of moderate means have collectively purchased more than 127,600 bonds, enabling them to share in the rich return their long-sighted investment must bring.

Their capital is steadily working in New Zealand forests producing the right kind of pine trees to meet the approaching world famine in industrial timber.

Bonds yielding approximately £250 in twelve years, costing £30 each—payable by instalments—may now be secured.

The Late Arnold Bennett's Last Long Story

"DREAM OF DESTINY"

(Copyright Strictly Reserved.)

Next day Roland, fatigued but excited into unusual corobral activity, had the whole morning press for breakfast, including one or two papers which for years he had not even seen. "All the papers?" the valet-waiter had questioned as he left the bedroom. "All." The result was quite a pile of sheets, for some of which the stage did not exist. Why had he ordered all the papers? Could it matter to him what might be the hastily scribbled opinions of critics most of whom he despised and sneered at? Well, he said to himself that he was curious to see the reaction of those worse than mediocre brains to "The Tenement Girl" and its performance. The phenomenon had a public interest. To study it would enlarge his knowledge of public taste, which hitherto he had blandly and charitably disdained. Not that he really cared what the critics wrote! No! Except as a symptom of the broad general view. They might praise or they might blame—who among the enlightened could be influenced? They praise. As he unfolded paper after paper he realized more and more clearly that the reaction was uniformly enthusiastic in a very high degree. The praise became monotonous. Four papers, with a total circulation of over six million copies, had put their account of the night prominently on the principal news page, side by side with revolutions and the doings of world-renowned pugilists for fame as cinema artists. The majority said straight that the play was a masterpiece, a truly great English comedy such as the Empire had too long been waiting for. The estimation of the length of its popular appeal varied from a year to eternity. Eternity made a year seem ludicrously inadequate. The play possessed every quality, but especially laughter and tears, tenderness and power, solidity and fancifulness. It was clean, healthy, wholesome, and true to life. As he reflected upon the tawdry piece, with its unbridled, unashamed sentimentality, Roland thought: "I wonder what the insides of their heads can be like. Talk about mass-suggestion!" One paper said: "The vast volume of applause rings true." That at any rate was accurate reporting. And therein lay the secret of the critical reaction: so the cynical fellow imagined. The critical reaction towards Phoebe's performance was equally enthusiastic. She had every gift. She had all the gifts of Mrs. Patrick Campbell and several more. She was extremely beautiful, and she was in her early twenties, and she was a star; she was now the star—of two continents; for America had been right. Every paper had a photograph of Phoebe; even the graver sheets, which derided the ways of American journalism, had photographs of her. "And," thought Roland, "I was with her last night, and I took her home, and she's twenty-eight, and I shouldn't call her extremely beautiful (but perhaps she is), and she went into hysterics, and afterwards she said she wasn't real a single moment, and I daresay she wasn't. Strange, she didn't seem to care a pin about upsetting her admirers! Why should she care? Her admirers will have to swallow whatever she gives them, now. She's the greatest Anglo-American star. Still, it was a bit odd that she didn't care. The fact is she isn't like the ordinary actress at all. She never behaves as if she belonged to the theatre. Fact is, she's very young for her age. I hope she slept well. I must telephone her and find out." In the criticisms there was one inharmonious note. An important provincial paper, whose contributor, teased the play from beginning to end, smiled at it mischievously, said that it had all the ingredients of popularity, carefully mixed. As to Phoebe he said that, accomplished though she might be, she was consistently and obstinately stager, and had given a show far inferior to her show in the previous play, which had so ingloriously failed. He said, too, that she had taken the measure of the London public. "This man," thought Roland, "is unfair, and somebody ought to tell him off. However, he's in a minority of one. So it doesn't matter." The notions of the representative of the provinces muzzled about in Roland's mind like a swarm of wasps. He tried to ignore them, and could not. How callously cruel were dramatic critics! Surely they ought to show some regard for the sensitiveness of young women, of toiling artists! The same critic sprinkled Mr. Encott, the hero, with a shower of facetiousness, which Roland enjoyed. The morning was not Mr. Encott. Phoebe had wiped him out. "Do him good!" thought Roland. The morning was Phoebe, and no one else's—save Mr. Adderton's, who most be relishing a rare breakfast.

The newspapers littered the floor of Roland's parlour; but before leaving (late) for Thames Court, he gathered them together and creased them in their proper folds; he did not wish the valet-waiter to know that his reason for ordering the whole of the morning press was to read theatrical notices. Something undignified about curiously concerning theatrical notices! He thought: "I won't ring her up just yet. She's probably asleep." From Thames Court he went out to lunch in Sloane Square half an hour earlier than usual. His unavowed aim in doing so was to read the notices in the three evening papers as soon as he decently could. The evening papers resembled the morning papers. Three hearts that beat as one. But there was more than in the morning papers. The evening papers had been collecting news and gossip for their lunch editions. News of the biggest 'Libraries' deal in the history of 'straight' plays. Gossip about her father. It appeared that Mr. Friar was a wealthy man, and had always been wealthy; and that his flat in Phillibert Court was the most wondrous in London; and that despite his riches he had taught himself to be a practical cabinet-maker and had encouraged his gifted daughter to go forth and earn a living; and that on the occasion of the first night he was the distinguished figure who sat, with his charming wife, in the opposite prompt stage box on the first tier.

Roland neglected his work in the afternoon, while feigning to be very busy. He said to himself: "She'll be being worried for interviews all day. I won't call her up till six o'clock." He left Thames Court early, intending to walk home. As he emerged from the Green Park into Piccadilly he could not resist buying, at five forty-five, the Late Night Final of his chief evening paper, for a Late Night Final differs so much from a Lunch Edition that it might have been published on another day. Moreover, he wanted to read again the notice, the news and the gossip.

The make-up of the front page had been completely altered. His eye caught the familiar word 'Phoebe', which he singled out as if by instinct. A very short paragraph about Phoebe, and it was at the bottom of the last column; for after all there are limits to free publicity. "Miss Phoebe Friar, the heroine of last night's great triumph, etc., has had the misfortune to be taken ill, and is confined to her bed for a few days. Her role will be played to-night by Miss Rosie Draper, her understudy, whose exquisite performance in 'Misled' will be remembered by all who saw it." Roland stopped a taxi and as he stepped into it ejaculated: "Phillibert Court."

"My God!" he said aloud in the vehicle, "what a cursed shame!" (To be continued.)

UNFINISHED MASTERPIECE

THE ARMAMENTS MUDDLE

The presence in London of Mr. Norman Davis and the French Premier again centres attention on the disarmament question. One of the objects of Mr. Davis' visit is to attempt to reconcile the Hoover proposals with the British disarmament programme, while M. Herriot is to explore the general disarmament question with the British Prime Minister. It is hoped that, as a result of these conversations, the Geneva Conference will be able to get down closer to realities, and, maybe, achieve something to allay German impatience and dissatisfaction. If these aims are realised, the way should be made all the easier for definite progress in the cause of disarmament.

It is now becoming evident that the German equality demand is being given a more sympathetic reception in various countries than was evidenced by the first reactions. Possibly this attitude is an outcome of the sharp disillusionment that has followed upon the failure to make any real advance towards general disarmament. It is not, however, intended to convey any indication of a general desire to see Germany re-armed. In that direction can only lie mischief and menace. At the same time, the German plea is an appropriate reminder that something will have to be done, and that soon. The Versailles signatories cannot profess to be carrying out Article VIII so long as they continue to spend money at the present rate on their armies, navies and air fleets. Germany, for her part, is disinclined to accept the promissory phrase in the Treaty as a sentimental flourish meaning nothing in particular, and the Powers have no right to expect that she should do so. France tells Germany that she is willing to collaborate in the task of disarmament, but to this the Berlin Government may justly reply that there is nothing more that Germany can do, seeing that she is already subjected to the most drastic obligatory disarmament. The German Chancellor, in the course of a broadcast speech, has emphasised that Germany has no wish to rearm or to embark on a policy of warlike adventure; what cuts her to the quick is the long-continued position of inferiority and defencelessness that she is compelled to endure. Her statesmen declare that the other Powers do not wish to apply to themselves the conditions of disarmament they have imposed on Germany. They add that Germany will not consent to being treated as a second-class Power any longer. Their attitude is, in the circumstances, quite understandable.

Looking at the matter squarely, it must be conceded that the world is still far distant from the epoch when all nations will have disarmed themselves to the German level. Yet it is useless for Germany not to take account of the realities and to demand the impossible. But this does not justify the Powers in continuing a policy of dilly-dally and evasion. They will have to face the fact that mankind looks upon them to make a substantial contribution at an early date to the cause of disarmament. Thus, so far as it serves to bring about such a development, the German claim must be welcomed. The next step is up to the Powers, who will have to show cause why they should not act in the spirit of the clauses of the Versailles Treaty which implied a determination to follow the German example of disarmament.

The Silly Season.

The "silly season" at Home has started off with two promising topics. That pungent old libertarian, Mr. A. P. Herbert, leads an attack in the Times on the prudish borough councillors who compel bathers at the seaside to clothe themselves in what (heaven knows why!) are called "university costumes." Would it really shock ladies to see a "manly chest" on the beach or even in the Serpentine? Or are the Puritans solicitous, like the late Lord Brentford, for the children's morals? One line of defence is that "our borough councillors" are not the only prudish: there are similar regulations in many Continental countries—in most, perhaps, save Germany, the nudists' paradise. But that argument proves nothing except that there are more silly people in the world than Mr. Herbert suggested. One correspondent in the Times takes exception to the "slip" on aesthetic grounds. Think, he says, not only of the "manly chests," but of some of the waists below them—"large balloon-like formations, which dot the plage like hay-cocks in a newly cut meadow." True, alas! But do they subside when enclosed in a skin-tight covering of black or white or pink-striped wool? Mr. Herbert will have a long fight, we fear, against Mrs. Grundy and Dogberry. The other topic is the modern boy. This creature, so the headmaster of one of our public schools has proclaimed, is a poor specimen compared with the boy of a generation ago. He lies, he thives, he funks, he slacks. You cannot even get him to watch a cricket match; it is too boring. Yet everyone but the schoolmasters knows (and they know it too) that boys in the past were bored to tears by watching cricket. As for the lament that Jones major cannot saddle a horse, is it any more surprising, or more disgraceful, than that his father was not taught to dance the minuet? And what is there novel in Smith minor liking to go as fast as possible in a motor car? Was Smith pere in his youth averse from scorching on his push-bike? It is hard to believe in this tale of degenerate youth—sneaking, lazy, neurotic boys and bumptious cock-tail drinking girls. It is a hoary theme; moralists have been at it since Aristophanes, and we dare say they were at it even in the neolithic age.

Captain R. J. Healy of the Dollar liner President Madison, rescuer of the survivors of the wrecked steamer Nevada, was married at Tacoma on October 8th to Mrs. Drucilla Rue Young. Their romance started about a year ago when the bride was a passenger to Manila on Capt. Healy's ship. She was also a passenger on the latest crossing and watched her future husband direct the rescue of the shipwrecked men.

The attractive appointments and furnishings of the public rooms of Gloucester Building have been further enhanced by the provision of exceptionally fine carpets, which arrived in the Colony recently. Specially made by the famous firm of Messrs. Wm. C. Gray and Son, of Ayr, Scotland, makers of the famous "Ayrton" carpets, to the order of Messrs. Whiteway, Laidlaw & Co., Ltd., the local agents, the various colour schemes are most pleasing and add considerably to the general effect of harmony and restfulness.

A motor-driver named Tsang Ngan, who had had his licence permanently suspended some time ago, was brought before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning on a charge of driving a lorry along Nathan Road yesterday without appropriate licence. It was revealed by the prosecution that defendant held a licence some years ago, but had an accident which led the police to charge him with manslaughter. The case was not sufficiently proved against him, but there was sufficient evidence for the authorities to suspend his licence permanently. A fine of $50, or one month, was imposed.

SHADOW OF FATHER

By AN OXFORD UNDERGRADUATE

MUCH venom has been spilt recently on the subject of the sons of famous fathers. I have had opportunity at Oxford of observing many sons of many famous fathers, for Oxford is their recreation ground.

Oxford has a snobbery of its own.

It is not snobbish in the sense that implies a preference for wealthy people. Although money matters a great deal among a certain set, that set is so small and self-contained that it can be disregarded when generalising about Oxford. Undergraduate feeling on the subject is shown by the inevitable reference to wealthy young men as "disgracefully" or "revoltingly" rich.

Nor is there a widespread snobbery surrounding birth, even when it carries an odd coronet or two. A title is looked upon as a helmet to protect an addled head, and "noble lord" rolls slowly and sarcastically off the tongue.

Nor is there a widespread intellectual snobbery resting on academic attainments. Nor do athletics matter outside their own sphere.

The way to get on

There is a certain amount of snobishness surrounding the men who have become figures in University life by way of the Union, the O.U.D.S., one of the University journals, or a vague literary and artistic dilettantism; but the way to get on at Oxford is to be the son of a distinguished father.

If you are graced by a well-known name, then everyone will seek your acquaintance, everyone will ask you to parties and dinners. People will introduce you with a significant pause on your name, and a light will spring to the eye of the newly introduced friend. A whisper will whisk round the room: "The son of—." Though you have but mediocre attainment you will be jockeyed to fame by your large circle of friends.

If you are the son of a famous politician, the way to success lies open to you at the Union. People will listen to you with attention, and, provided you have the facility for disarming jealousy, you will progress with amazing speed. Indeed, there was one debate at the Union a few years ago in which all those speaking on the motion were sons of well-known statesmen or politicians, and none, it was said, had earned his position by the hard spade-work necessary for less fortunate members who have to speak late at night before a bored and ever-dwindling audience.

There was comment on that debate, and things have changed since. Sons of famous politicians speak at the Union now, whose ability has won them that distinction as much as their name. No one would deny that Tony Greenwood, the son of the ex-Minister for Health, on form, is the best example of a dryly incisive orator at the Union at the moment. No one would deny that Mr. Michael Foot, son of the Minister for Mines, Mr. K. R. F. Steel Maitland, son of the Rt. Hon. Sir Arthur Steel Maitland, Mr. J. S. Cripps, son of Sir Stafford Cripps, have inherited their fathers' brains.

But my point is that it was far more important for them at the beginning of their Union careers that they had inherited their fathers' names. They stand on their own but they do not stand so high on them that they can disregard the debt they owe to their names. Mr. Giles Playfair has a flair of his own, but he would not say that he owed nothing to the fact that he is the son of Sir Nigel.

Members of the Union like to see the chairs of office occupied by the sons of distinguished men. Many of them would—although they would not admit it themselves—be as much influenced by the name of a candidate for office as by his oratory. After all, it is only a natural pride in their society that makes them like to talk of the well-known names that adorn the lists of presidents and other officials.

The Union is only one facet of undergraduate activity. Outside the political atmosphere notoriety is more desirable in one's parents than solid distinction.

I do not mean that the son of a murderer stands higher in the social scale than the son of a judge. I mean if you are the son of a novelist who has written a best seller, or a famous playwright or actor, or a celebrated K.C., or a big business man who is in the public eye, you will go down better at Oxford than the son, for instance, of a highly-placed civil servant who works behind the scenes. The son of an Edgar Wallace would be more eagerly courted than the son of an Equerry.

Inverted Snobbery

A nobleman's son is generally assumed to have no brains at all. It is curious that a title is not a real asset at Oxford unless its owner can prove he has charm and ability in spite of it. As for foreign princelings and nobility they are treated with an amused tolerance and it is openly hinted that their titles are bogus. One Ruritanian prince found it to his advantage to give up using his title.

But if you have a well-known father you will have the entrée everywhere. There are certain young men who make a hobby of collecting as large an acquaintance among the sons of the great as the capacity of their purses allows.

Of course, it cuts the other way as well. The slightest forwardness on the part of a son of the great and he is instantly accused of "trading on his father's name"—one of the unwritten sins of Oxford. There is a polite assumption that you are not making capital out of your name unless you mention your father. That is suicidal, for it arouses all the latent jealousy, and unless you are an experienced hand at disarming it, you may suffer.

Unless they make fools of themselves, Oxford is one vast conspiracy to give the sons of the great a good time. It is their best club.

BE CAREFUL!

(By Edward Kelly, C. A. D.)

AND now they tell us that wireless programmes, once on the air, stay there and that in 2,000 A.D. we will be able to tune in to a programme broadcast in 1932.

Worse than that. They say that we'll be able to tune in to the year 4,000 B.C. and hear what Adam said to Eve during the terrible fig leaf shortage that year.

Up to a point, we are all in favour of this scientific advance.

Wouldn't it be nice if in 50 years' time, ZBW could broadcast the first debates in the Legislative Council on the Shing Mun dam proposals, following a running description of how the King, who was present by television, declared it well and truly open.

(Say it Softly.)

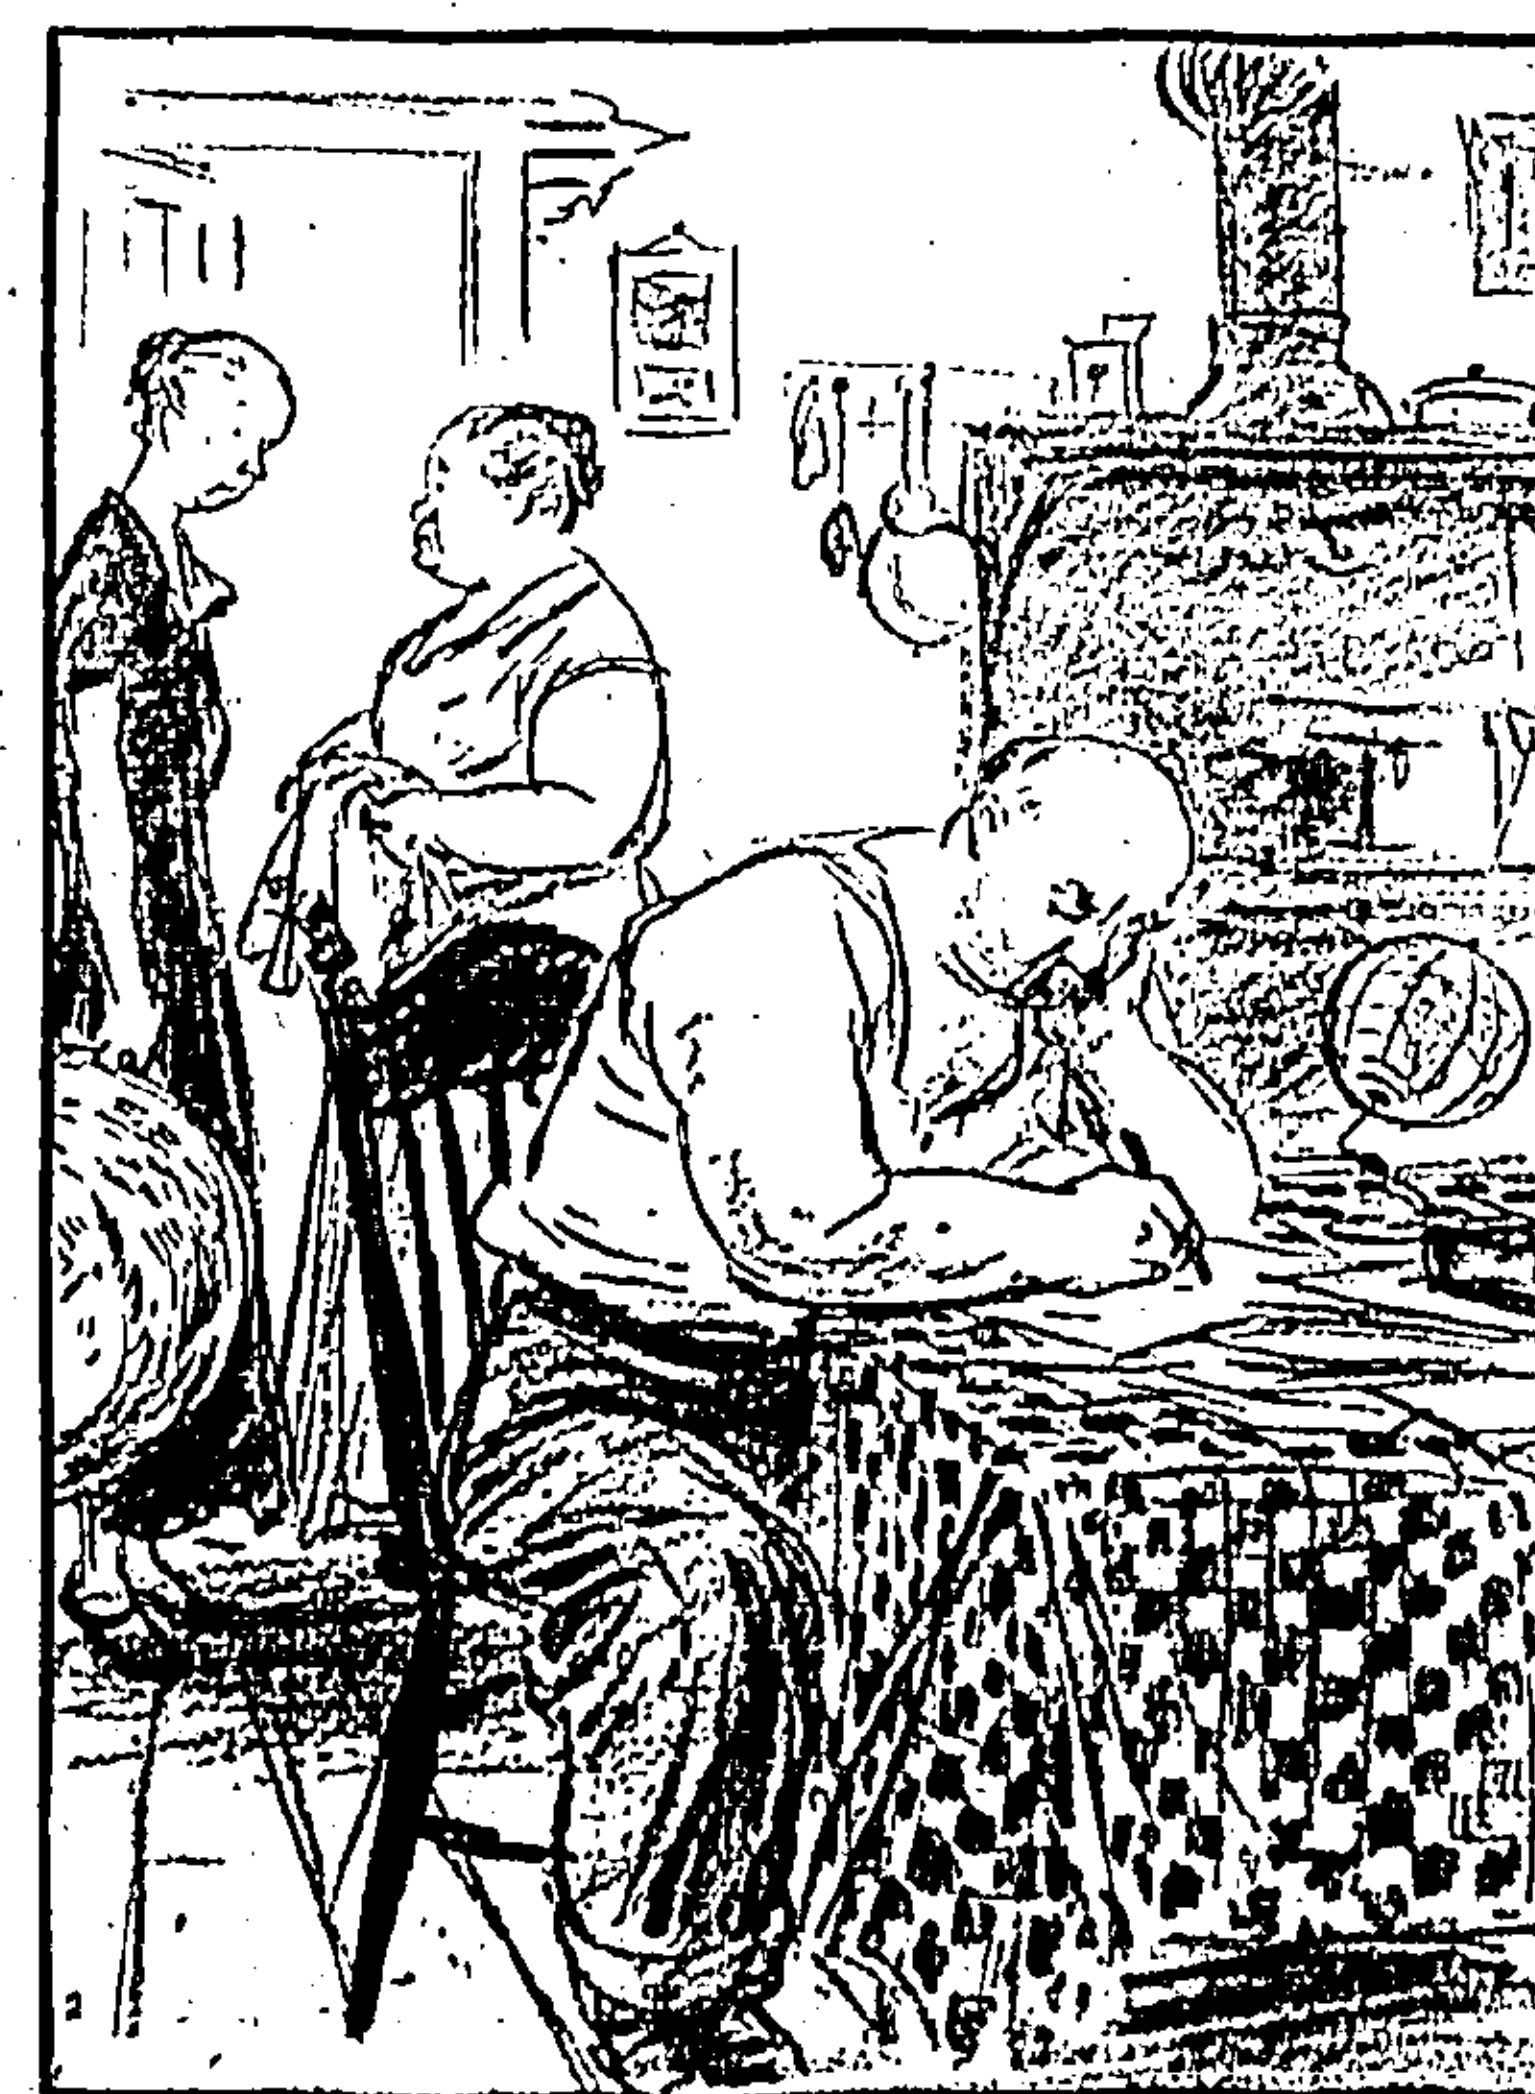

We'd like to know the classic phrases employed by Hannibal, when he kicked his toe crossing the Alps. We'd like to hear the billing and cooing of Anthony and Cleo, and compare their style with Robert Montgomery and one of his girl friends.

Yes, we would like to hear lots of things. We have often wondered what Mrs. Pharoah said to Mr. Pharoah when he built his pyramid on her bed of goranlums. We'll lay the odds it was something good.

But the line must be drawn somewhere. It would be just too bad if in the year 2000 A.D. when we are sitting by the radio with Mrs. Kelly, and the full and complete story comes out of our experience with the barmaid in 1932 when we were home on leave.

There is a grain of hope left, however.

We'll probably be dead by then. Hooryay!

INTERPORT POLO SHANGHAI ARRIVE AND PLAY TO-MORROW ARRANGEMENTS

Plans have been completed for the reception and entertaining of the Shanghai Interport Polo team which is arriving in the Empress of Japan to-morrow. The names of the members of this team have been received and are as follows: Judge C. S. Franklin who will act as captain, Dr. V. Parks Woods, N. F. Allman, and D. Burdick. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Franklin, Mrs. Woods, and Mrs. Burdick.

As reported earlier, the match will be played on the Hong Kong Polo Club grounds at Causeway Bay at 3 o'clock on Friday. Following the match a dinner has been arranged by the members of the polo club in honor of the visitors and will be held in the private dining room of the Gloucester Building under the personal supervision of Mr. Newman. A special dinner for the visiting wives is also planned.

EARLY RETURN.

The players from Shanghai have announced that the pressure of business necessitates their departure on Saturday morning. The fact that men as busy as they have journeyed to Hongkong, bringing their ponies with them, to compete for the Kewick Cup indicates the importance they attach to the competition.

This cup was given by the late Mr. Kewick, the father of J. Kewick of Jardines, and was first competed for in 1907 at Shanghai. This will be the 13th match for its possession. Although these matches have been played at irregular intervals, the scene has alternated regularly between Shanghai and Hongkong. The Shanghai club has retained the Cup during the last nine competitions, although in 1922 play was continued through eight chukkers before the deciding score of 6 to 5 was made.

PLAYERS' CAREERS.

Two of the members of the Shanghai team have long records as polo players. Judge Franklin, who will act as captain, played for several years in Honolulu prior to his arrival on the China Coast in 1925. Since then he has played regularly in the Shanghai International matches and has captained American teams against Tientsin and Peking, as well as against other Shanghai teams.

Mr. Allman's record dates from 1927 since which time he has played on teams competing for the Hoyt cup, captaining the American team in 1931. He has also played in the International matches. Less is definitely known in Hongkong concerning Dr. Woods and Mr. Burdick. The latter, however, was a member of the Shanghai team which defeated Tientsin in 1930 by a score of 6 to 2 goals.

The recent history of this team is such as to mark them as formidable opponents. They come well mounted and with considerable experience as a playing unit.

HONGKONG TEAM.

The Hongkong team, which is composed of Captain P. L. Villar as Captain, P. A. Pollock, Major J. R. Barry, and J. Kewick, has had less practice as a team although the individuals have played during many years. Captain Villar is of the South Wales Borderers and is well known to Hongkong polo enthusiasts. His experience has been gained in part with the service at foreign posts. Major Barry is of the Royal Artillery and has followed polo both at home and abroad. Mr. Pollock, of Jardines, is better known to Shanghai, as this year, with the exception of a short stay several years ago, is his first in Hongkong. Mr. Kewick who is the son of the founder of the cup is also a recent arrival from Shanghai.

These four have been playing as a team recently and give indications of an ability to offer strong opposition even to such a group as the visitors from the North. The band of the 1st Battalion 24th Regiment will play during the afternoon, and Mrs. Southern has consented to present the trophy at the conclusion.

ALLEGED FRAUDS ON FIRM

WARRANT OF ARREST ISSUED

According to police reports, a series of alleged frauds covering a period of nearly seven years, and totalling nearly $18,500, the victims being the Hongkong branch of the Sheng To Weaving Factory, has been brought to light. As a consequence, a warrant has been issued for the arrest of Taul Wai-chung, sales manager at the local branch. He is described as being 35 years of age, 5 feet 6 inches in height, and of medium build, having pale complexion, with the appearance of an opium smoker. He is a native of Soochow.

Taul is wanted for the alleged embezzlement of $18,237.98 from the office between November, 1925, and September this year.

The Royal Observatory reports that the anticyclone now central over Japan. A typhoon is situated about 200 miles S.W. of Manila, moving W. or W.N.W. Fresh monsoon will continue over the Northern China Sea. Local forecast:—N.E. winds, fresh; fine.

EMPLOYEE SUES FIRM OFFICE QUARRELS ALLEGED

Claims totalling $511.25 in respect of salary, commissions and travelling expenses were made against the Hanovia Quartz Lamp Co., 10, Queen's Road Central, by H.C. Yuen, 165, Third Street, at the Supreme Court this morning before the puisne Judge (Mr. Justice Wood).

Mr. W. C. Hung, of Deacons, appeared for plaintiff and Mr. F.C.E. Rendall for the defendant. Mr. Hung, outlining the case for plaintiff, stated that the claim was for $431.25 in respect of salary, commissions and travelling expenses due from defendants for June, July, August and September, and a further claim of passage and travelling expenses for plaintiff's return to Shanghai, an expense not yet incurred. Plaintiff was originally employed with the defendant firm in Shanghai and was transferred to the Hongkong office in April of this year.

When plaintiff arrived, he did not get on very well with the Manager, Mr. Williams, and the two were continually having disputes. On June 20th, notice was given to him that he would be re-transferred soon to Shanghai, but the notice was not given in writing. Pending arrangements for his transfer to Shanghai, plaintiff continued to attend at the office.

ASSAULT ALLEGED.

On July 13th, following a dispute with the Manager plaintiff was assaulted and received various injuries, as a consequence of which he had to receive medical attention.

His Lordship:—Has that assault been the subject of proceedings?

Mr. Hung:—No.
Mr. Hung, continuing, said since July 13th, plaintiff had received nothing further on account of his salary and commission. He did not attend at the office after July 13th.

Plaintiff was questioned at length regarding his claims, and in reply to a question by his Lordship, Mr. Hung agreed to accept plaintiff's dismissal as occurring on July 2nd, and to amend the claim accordingly.

DEFENCE ALLEGATION.

Cross-examined by Mr. Rendall, plaintiff stated he was born and educated in Hongkong and that his home was in the New Territories. He admitted writing to Shanghai regarding the assault on him by Mr. Williams and said he received no direct reply.

Mr. Rendall accused plaintiff of misappropriating $100 paid to him in connexion with a contract, to which defendant replied that the money was paid to him to go to Shanghai.

Mr. Rendall:—It came to the notice of Mr. Williams on July 1st that the contract had been entered into and he dismissed you on July 2nd, isn't that so?

Plaintiff:—No, I did not receive notice of dismissal from him on July 2nd.

In answer to His Lordship, Mr. Rendall stated that the dismissal was direct from Mr. Williams to the plaintiff.

In regard to another account, plaintiff stated that on 20th June he paid $50 to the clerk. He did not pay all the amount to the clerk as he was going out to tea with the buyer. He retained $35. Between July 2nd and July 13th he attended the office every day.

Mr. Rendall:—And on each occasion you were told to leave?—No.

THROWN OUT.

On the 13th, because you would not leave you were thrown out?—July 13th was the only time I was ordered to leave.

Were you told in June that you were to make out a daily statement of your travelling expenses?—Yes. But I did not do it.

Referring to the writ, his Lordship enquired of Mr. Hung if he was responsible for its preparation. He pointed out that at the back of the writ the claim was set out at $435.25 and in another part was for $435.25 in respect of salary, commission and travelling expenses, plus $120 passage and travelling expenses to Shanghai and further that the writ was stamped with stamps to the value of $3.50 instead of $5.

Mr. Hung apologized and agreed to make the necessary amendments.

Evidence for the defence was given by Mr. P. Williams, manager, of defendant firm, who stated that he dismissed plaintiff on July 2nd, when it came to his notice that plaintiff had misappropriated certain monies.

His Lordship (to Mr. Hung):—How much of your claim do you think you have established?—Salary, commission and travelling expenses to the end of July—$200—and travelling expenses and passage to Shanghai.

His Lordship:—There has been no evidence that there was a contract to transfer him to Shanghai.

ST. PAUL'S IS TILTING OVER —BUT VERY SLOWLY

COUNTY HALL MOVES WITH THE TIDES

"St. Paul's is gradually tilting over." So Captain T. E. Longfield, of H. M. Ordnance Survey, stated in a paper to the Engineering Section of the British Association.

Other points in the paper were: County Hall moves up and down with the tides.

The Bank of England exhibits "disturbing behaviour."

Railway tunnels under the river go egg-shaped at high tide. Captain Longfield said that when Britain first arose "from out the azure mists" her cliffs were at least 70 feet higher than they were to-day. Britain was sinking again to sea level at the rate of nine inches every hundred years.

The Bank of England was the centre of a large subsidence. "On comparing the 1895 level with that of 1931 it is seen that a definite subsidence commences at Paddington and continues as far east as Limehouse, where it disappears," he said. "The maximum subsidence is over 0.6 of a foot at the Bank of England."

He also referred to land movements associated with the rise and fall of the tides. "A seismograph in the County Hall, Westminster," he said, "has shown a definite movement of the building corresponding with high and low tides."

"Waterloo Bridge sinks at high tide and rises again at low tide, owing to the compression due to the weight of the water."

Sinking at the Bank.

St. Paul's Cathedral is also gradually sinking, Captain Longfield declared.

"Each separate levelling," he said, "shows that St. Paul's has sunk relatively at three points. From 1895 to 1914 the mean relative subsidence was almost exactly 0.1 of a foot, and in the period 1914 to 1932 the mean was again 0.1. The east end of the Cathedral appears to have sunk more than the west end."

What was described as the "disturbing behaviour of the Bank of England" was also discussed, and Captain Longfield said that the building had sunk a total of .587 of a foot in the last 68 years.

KOWLOON BUS MISHAPS

PASSENGERS HURT BY JUMPING OFF

The police report that Peter Dillon, aged 12, a Kowloon school-boy, sustained slight injuries to his face when he leapt from a Kowloon Motor Bus Co. vehicle, yesterday in Sai Kung Road, Kowloon. The lad was taken to the Kowloon Hospital for treatment.

A similar accident was reported from the Sham Shui Po district last night, where Ho Mui (21), an employee of the Nam Chan Shop, Fuk Wah Street, jumped from a China Motor Bus Co. vehicle, receiving internal injuries. He was removed to the Kwong Wah Hospital.

The wedding will shortly take place between Mr. Leonardus Petrus van Calcar, bank employee, Peninsula Hotel, and Miss Margot van Ziegler, Helena May Institute, Kowloon.

Mr. Hung:—Then I will claim $200, less an advance of $150 which leaves $50.

CREDIT PAYMENTS.

His Lordship:—There are certain credit payments due on commission accounts. There is the sum of $110 due to plaintiff from the defendant firm in respect of salary and there is the sum of $184.55 due from plaintiff to defendant which was the subject of his dismissal. That leaves the sum of $74.55 owing to the firm. To plaintiff's credit there are certain commissions. Shall I then adjourn the matter sine die so that a statement of the commission account can be submitted?

Mr. Rendall:—I will give an undertaking here and now to pay to plaintiff anything that is due to him from defendants. I think I am entitled to judgment on this writ. I am here to answer a claim and I have I submit answered it successfully and am therefore entitled to judgment. I ask for judgment and costs.

His Lordship gave judgment for defendants with costs, providing there was an undertaking to procure the account for commission earned and that it be adjusted in consultation with Mr. Hung.

OTTAWA PACTS REVEALED

ments with the Dominions whose interests are affected.

IMMEDIATE ADVANTAGE. In regard to the modification of the import duties in Dominions on articles imported from Britain, full particulars are given of the new rates to be imposed.

In regard to Canada, these modifications apply to some 215 items, of which, in 132 cases, the duties on United Kingdom goods are to be reduced and of which in 79 cases, such goods are for the first time to enjoy freedom from customs duty.

On the basis of last year's trade, over 40 per cent. of imports from the United Kingdom into Canada will enjoy immediately an advantage of lower customs duties than those previously in force, goods to the value of over eight million dollars being admitted free of customs duty.

MINIMUM PREFERENCES.

The agreement with Australia provides that, subject to Tariff Board recommendations, United Kingdom goods will enjoy certain minimum preferences graded according to the duties chargeable upon them.

The minimum margin of the preference will range from 15 per cent. ad valorem when the duty on United Kingdom goods is up to 19 per cent. ad valorem, to 20 per cent. preference where the duty is 20 per cent. but the maximum duty rate must not exceed 75 per cent.

Preferences exceeding these resulting from the application of the formula remain at the existing level subject to certain minor reservations.

Certain prohibitions on British imports are withdrawn and the removal of surcharges and primage duties is promised as soon as practicable.

MEAT CONTROL.

An important feature of the Australian agreement has reference to arrangements for the regulation of imports into Britain of frozen and chilled meat.

It provides, inter alia, for Australia limiting the export of frozen mutton and lamb to Britain in 1933 to an amount equivalent to that so exported in the year ending June 20th last.

Meanwhile, the United Kingdom Government will arrange with the Australian Government for the regulation of the importation of foreign meat in accordance with an agreed programme and for the quantitative regulation of supplies of bacon and hams coming on the United Kingdom market.

1933 CONSULTATION.

The Government will consult in 1933 on the best means of securing an improved price situation and a more orderly marketing of the supplies.

Britain already enjoys a very large proportion of the New Zealand trade. By the agreement, the Dominion undertakes not to increase the primage duty, to lower still further the existing duties, to abolish the surtax on British goods and to modify certain basic import duties.

OTHER AGREEMENTS.

New and increased margins of preferences on United Kingdom goods are granted by the South African agreement affecting ten million pounds worth of trade of which Britain hitherto supplies two millions.

Hitherto Newfoundland has not adopted the principle of Imperial Preferences but its agreement provides, as from July next, for preferences of 10 per cent. on a wide range of goods, subject to certain reservations.

India absorbs about ten per cent. of Britain's total exports but hitherto Britain has had no customs advantages. Preferences are now proposed on articles in which the total trade last year was $34.9 million of which Britain supplied $14.3 millions.

DEBUT SUCCESS

MAMAK WIN FOR H.M.S. VETERAN

SPARKLING HOCKEY AT MARINA

H.M.S. Veteran made their debut in this year's Mamak Tournament yesterday when they defeated the 20th Battery by two goals to nil on the Navy ground at King's Park. The combined movements of the Naval men were very effective and a noticeable feature of their game was the long passing between defence and attack. In this respect Sub. Lt. Caryer was outstanding, feeding his forwards from his position at left back with remarkable accuracy. Rows, in the centre, was the best of the half-back line. He rendered yeoman service and was responsible for frustrating many of the moves of the opposing forwards. His flank men, Marriott and Fossie were to be relied on.

A good understanding was shown by the three inside men in the attack, Rimmer, Cooper and Tyler, and their combination pushed them through the Battery defence time and time again.

In the Battery forward line, Birt, at centre-forward, put in a great deal of hard work and was ably supported by the players on either side. The half way line was unable to cope with the fast and clever moves of the naval men and were continually lagging behind with the backs. On account of this the forward line was never very much to the fore. Evans and Dodd showed up well in the back line, while Combe, in goal, brought off many good saves.

Both goals were scored during the first half when Rimmer and Ross found the net within the first fifteen minutes. Play was in favour of the Veteran men who were always on the attack. The second half, however, was more evenly contested and play was kept more in the middle of the field. It was not until the closing stages that the sailors again became really aggressive. They came near to scoring on two or three occasions but the Battery kept their goal intact.

R.A.S.C. AGAIN.

By four goals to one the R.A.S.C. defeated H.M.S. Parthian in a game which was played at a fast pace. The R.A.S.C. were superior throughout and were full value for their win.

Within the first fifteen minutes Eva opened the scoring and this lead was increased a few minutes later by Pippie. With the score at two-nil in favour of the Army side the teams changed over and during the second half goals were added by Lazenby and Eva. Just before the final whistle McRae netted the Parthian's only goal.

German Club Batten.

Sending out a very weak team, the German Club offered little opposition to the South Wales Borderers who won 12 goals to nil. The Germans were without the services of Sommer, Annam and many other of their strong players.

FRIENDLIES.

The German Club offered very little opposition to the South Wales Borderers when the two teams met yesterday, and the Borderers finished with twelve goals to their credit. As the score indicates play was very one-sided. In fairness to the Club it should be mentioned that they were without the services of some of their best players.

STERLING HOCKEY.

To decide what may be termed the unofficial championship of the Hongkong Hockey field, the Hongkong Club were opposed to the Jat Regiment yesterday, and a game full of thrills and fought out at a very fast pace was the result. The score, a draw of one goal each was a fair indication of the run of play.

As holders of the Sim Shield, the Club is nominally the best side in the Colony. The Jats on the other hand have been aspirants for that honour for some time past and much interest was evinced in the match after both teams had in turn defeated the H.K.S.R.A.

Strong teams were fielded by both factions and the game produced some sparkling hockey, undoubtedly the best seen in Hongkong for the season. Play fluctuated throughout, both ends being visited in turn. The scoring was opened by Jall for the Jats following a penalty corner and before the interval L. Tetley brought the scores level. As in the first half the second produced evenly contested play and both goals underwent many narrow escapes.

The following will represent the Hongkong Hockey Club "A" team against the South Wales Borderers at 5.15 p.m. on Friday, October 14, at King's Park:—Morgan, Lowe and Henry; Ross, Dale and Jones; Fox, Garrod, McIntyre, Wade and Davies.

LAWN LAST WOOD

SEASON CLOS ON SATURDAY

HONGKONG MEET KOWLOON.

The Aitkenhead Shield lawn bowls match between Hongkong and Kowloon will be played at the Kowloon Bowling Green Club on Saturday next, the 15th inst. Twelve rinks from the Kowloon Clubs will oppose twelve rinks from the Hongkong Clubs and a very keen tussle is expected.

The games are to commence at 2.30 p.m. sharp and all players and others interested are asked to be on the ground in good time.

In order to avoid delay the rinks on which the various teams are to play were drawn from the hat when the draw between the Clubs was made on Tuesday last. Score boards and score cards will be made ready before the start so that it only needs the players to turn up early for the games to commence punctually at 2.30 p.m.

Tens will be provided during the afternoon for players and spectators. As this match is the last official fixture of the season Saturday will be the Hongkong Lawn Bowls Association's closing day and trophies and prizes for the following will be presented after the games:

TENNIS NOT THE BEST CHOICE

CORRESPONDENT & LOCAL TEAM

"WE SHOULD HAVE HAD TRIALS"

"We should have had trials" writes "The Champ" in his reply to "Sports Saker", when he makes further comment on the composition of the Hongkong Interport tennis team.

In his letter, "The Champ" says: With reference to your correspondent's reply to my letter, I was rather amused to read his lesson on sportsmanship. If he thinks that I know nothing about the running of an Interport, he is very much mistaken. I really don't see how my suggestion could be considered unsporting and an insult to Shanghai.

A COMPLIMENT.
Could your correspondent tell me the ranking of the Shanghai team? I don't think they are going to do the ranking unless they know ours first. As a matter of fact, apart from Khoo, the champion, who is not coming, I don't think any of their players has a claim to the No. 1 or No. 2 position. In making my suggestions as to how the players should be matched, I certainly paid their team a compliment by regarding them all as equals.

Your correspondent must understand that I was only comparing the two teams as were already chosen, and was not suggesting that our team was the best choice. I too, think that we should have had trials. If we are to number players, we should put our champion in the trials as well. It is many months ago since he won the championship; he might have dropped a good deal since the tournament, and we might have a player who could beat him now."

SHANGHAI RANKING.

(Shanghai has already issued its ranking in regard to the singles for the forthcoming Interport. Gordon Lum is to play No. 1. Guy Cheng No. 2, and J. L. Wade No. 3. The doubles ranking has not been officially notified. Judged on the results of the Shanghai championship just concluded, Khoo Hoo-hye and W.H.A. Duff would occupy the No. 1 and 2 places in the Shanghai tennis ranking, but it has to be remembered that this is quite distinct from the ranking awarded to the Interport team which does not include either of these players—"Veritas").

FORWARDS OF PROMISE

CLUB DIFFICULTY DISAPPEARING

GOOD PRACTISE YESTERDAY

Newcomers to the Hongkong Rugby Club had an opportunity of revealing themselves yesterday when the first practice of the season took place at Happy Valley. The games, which entailed the teams being continually switched about allowed only for a study of individual form and in this respect the trials were a distinct success.

Last year the Club suffered a grave handicap by weak forwards, and by a stroke of good fortune the majority of the new players are "vanners". From the slight impression to be gained yesterday it would seem that much of the Club's worries in this direction are more or less at an end.

Probably the most prominent of the "captains" was J. C. Millar, who not only scored a remarkably fine try, but throughout the afternoon displayed form which places him a high class. The Club can definitely look to him as an asset.

Although the remainder did nothing to warrant the description of brilliant, everybody played a useful part in the afternoon's practice. Dr. Selby turned out in the first half but contented himself with some quiet constructive work, whilst other old stalwarts such as McEllan, G. P. Lammert and Fox gave sound displays.

It would appear that the Club backs and three-quarters will be more or less those of last year, but important and strengthening alterations will undoubtedly result among the forwards.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Donomont Hall, a picturesque village near Beaumont, on the Hamstead road, where, according to the local gossip "nothing ever happens," was provided with the tangle of its lifetime when a B.L.F. unit, under the direction of Lupino Lane, selected it as the site for an exciting scene in "The Love Race," showing at the Queens. The villagers saw a taxi containing two men being driven down a hill towards the level crossing, approaching the closed gates at breakneck speed. They also saw an L.M.S. passenger train, less than 50 yards away, tearing towards the spot. They watched the policeman at the gates waving his arms frantically at the taxi-driver and then their hearts missed a beat for he was forced to leap aside as the car rushed by to its apparent destruction. The taxi dashed through the first of the gates and then burst through the second as a moment later the train thundered by. But the accident was all according to plan as those watchers who did not already know soon discovered. The speed of the train and that of the taxi had been worked out (with the weight of the taxi as another factor in the mathematical formula) so that on the second the last gate was wrecked the train was due to dash by.

The passengers in the taxi for this scene were Stanley Lupino and Jack Hobbs who had already kept their seats through a crash into a barn and a haystack. The driver was Arty Ashe. Stanley Lupino and Jack Hobbs in the film are supposed to be rival drivers in a road race using cars manufactured by their respective fathers. They had hired the taxi to get them to the track, but arrive as the winning car passes the post.

"The Passionate Plumber."

Are there any plumbers in France? If so, what do they wear and how do they act? These were a few of the aggravating questions which bothered the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer research department during filming of "The Passionate Plumber" in which Buster Keaton and Jimmy Durante join hands to raise merriment in a riotous French bedroom farce.

In this comedy, which will be shown at the Queen's Theatre on Sunday, Keaton plays the role of a plumber who gets into hilarious difficulties repairing bathtubs in ladies' apartments. He had to be shown in a regulation French plumbing shop with all the necessary equipment as an authentic background. The well-known lack of plumbing facilities in some of the largest buildings in France presented grave doubts as to whether or not an official bathroom expert existed in the country. The archives were searched thoroughly until by chance a picture was located showing one of the rare French artisans at work. The mystery was solved! He wore long baggy trousers, a small apron and a beret. His tools were carried in a case strongly resembling a medical kit. Above all, his attitude was that of a professional man making a call! Keaton's makeup and wardrobe for the picture was patterned closely after this authentic French original.

Heartbreak

Love greater than the desire for fame and more powerful than the fear of death is portrayed by Charles Farrell, costarred with Madge Evans in "Heartbreak," thrilling Fox drama of Romance showing at the Oriental Theatre to-day. The film version was made from Llewellyn Hughes' recent popular magazine story adapted in continuity and dialogue by William Conselman and directed by Alfred L. Werker. The drama deals with the romance of a young American diplomat, Charles Farrell, and a beautiful Viennese countess, Madge Evans, who meet and fall in love during American's neutrality. The last featured player is John Arledge as Farrell's Agent buddy. Claude King and John St. Polis and also in the cast.

NEW SERVICE TO U.S.

JUTLANDIA INAUGURATES
PACIFIC-ORIENTAL RUN

A large number of prominent ship-owners and local merchants attended a reception held on board the motor vessel Jutlandia between 2 and 6 p.m. yesterday afternoon, on the occasion of the inauguration by the East Asiatic Company and the Chinese American Shipping Company of their Pacific Oriental Service.

The ship, which has been be-flagged since its arrival in Hongkong on Tuesday, presented a spic and span appearance as the interested visitors were escorted over her. Surprisingly luxurious for a cargo vessel is the passenger accommodation aboard, and the cabins, each with private bathroom and sitting room, were responsible for much favourable comment.

The Jutlandia is a twin screw steamer of 5,500 tons gross, and is propelled by twin Diesel engines. The ship differs from other vessels inasmuch as it is without a funnel, the exhaust from the engines being carried astern through thin exhaust pipes. The modern conveniences for quick loading and unloading of cargo include electric winches, their almost eerie silence being another feature of this ship. During the afternoon a practical demonstration of cargo handling was arranged for the guests aboard the ship.

The Jutlandia leaves Hongkong today on the maiden voyage across the Pacific to San Francisco. Ports of call en transit include Shanghai, Seattle, Vancouver and Portland. The trip from Hongkong to San Francisco will take only 25 days.

The new service is being jointly operated by the Chinese American Shipping Company (Hong Kong, Agents) and the East Asiatic Company Ltd. (John Manners & Co.)

Safeguarding Your Investment

The natural laws of economics require an investor to secure the best return especially upon savings—trust funds—consistent with safety.

The China Realty Company is one of the oldest (established more than 20 years) real estate companies in Shanghai with a steady successful record back of it.

Capital Tls. 5,000,000 fully paid in cash.

Business turnover 1931, Tls. 45,632,300 in land and mortgages only, which does not include management of estates, rent collections, insurance written, trustees for beneficial owners of property and sundry sources of income.

The Company are Realtors, not speculators in Real Estate.

The balance sheet as of December 31, 1931 shows—

Assets $12,341,726.31
Land and Buildings at cost 3,351,055.84
Cash 1,844,259.11

Mortgages on Real Estate held by Company Dec. 31, 1931 $5,971,200

Total Debenture issue 4,840,700 by which it will be noted that all of the proceeds from Debentures are invested in Mortgages and

Tls. 1,130,500 of the Company's capital.

In the past twenty years the Company has negotiated more than one hundred million Taels in mortgages, ALL OF WHICH HAS BEEN REPAYED, PRINCIPAL WITH INTEREST—

If after careful consideration of actual facts and figures you are receiving less than 8% upon your investments and/or savings, you are not using judgment but following old customs, believing 5% and 6% are current rates.

CHINA REALTY COMPANY 8% DEBENTURES
8% INTEREST VS 6% INTEREST
MEANS ONE THIRD MORE INCOME

The following extracts are taken from the Chairman's statement at the last annual Shareholders Meeting, February 20th, 1932.

"We feel that the Debenture holder from an investment standpoint, is just as much an interested partner of the Company as the Common Shareholder and is entitled to his just return on his investment, and by the figures given on the two years' working, I think we have amply proven that we were right that our Debenture holders receive eight per cent. interest instead of six per cent."

"The most successful concerns of the future will be those who recognize this principle—that even banks will allocate to depositors a part of profits earned on their money over and above current rates of interest. As our balance sheets show quite plainly the proceeds from the sale of our debentures is not used for the purchase of Real Estate, as we are not speculators, but for investment in first class mortgages, amply secured not only by the value of the property pledged as security but as a further security the debentures constitute a first claim on the total assets of the Company. An analysis of the figures involved shows that every debenture has behind it assets equal to three times its value."

COMPARISON

Mortgage Department, 1930-1931

Year	Amount	Market Value of Property	% Value loaned	Average Interest rate	Average Commission %	Excess Interest over 8%	Amount Commission Earned
1930	10,052,040	$18,662,000	54%	9.18%	1.215%	$118,614	$122,316
1931	19,194,867	34,075,565	56%	9.33%	0.765%	255,291	146,825
						$373,905	$269,141
							373,905

Earned above 8% paid to Debenture holders—$643,046

Of the above mortgages, there was assigned to investors:

1930	$ 6,532,660.00
1931	$13,223,545.00

A lower rate of commission existed in 1931 due to cheap money for the greater part of the year, from September, money commenced to tighten up. As it is we earned 1.33% interest in excess of 8% paid on our Debentures, in addition to $146,825 commissions. From the above it will be seen that our 8% Debentures are secured by first mortgages on 56.4% of value and backed up with $5,000,000 capital.

LYTTON REPORT

CONDEMNATION BY THE CANTON COUNCIL

The South West Executive Department of the C.E.C. and the South West Political Council have jointly issued a circular telegram to the Central Party Headquarters, the National Government, and the country in general, defining the local opinion on the Lytton Commission Report, says the Canton Gazette.

Reviewing the incidents since September 18 last year, the local message recalls that China had from the very first offered no resistance and depended on the League, while Japan had utilized the opportunity to execute her schemes. The League had failed to take effective measures to check the Japanese atrocities, and had instead appointed a Commission of Inquiry, thus allowing Japan more time to commit her aggressive acts.

The publication of the Lytton Report, continues the local message, had been eagerly awaited in the hope that despite the delay, it would at least be instrumental in effecting a fair settlement of the dispute. But the Report has been a disappointment. Its conclusions are contradictory to its own findings and to the covenants and treaties on which the Report is based. While Japan, whose military operations were recognized as no measures of legitimate self-defence, has violated the Covenant and the League itself had on various occasions come to the decision to restore the status quo in Manchuria, it has been astonishing to see that the Report states that the restoration of the status quo is not a measure for settlement.

The proposal to create Manchuria into a sort of autonomous state with foreign supervision is strongly criticized by the local message, inasmuch as the Commission admits that Manchuria is a part of China. The proposal of autonomy in Manchuria is taken to mean international control and as such violates the territorial integrity of China.

Objection is taken to the proposed new treaties for China and Japan and the misinterpretation of Dr. Sun Yat-sen's plan for international cooperation in the development of China's industrial resources under the control of the Chinese government to mean that international cooperation should be sought for in the internal reconstruction and the administration of China.

The local leaders declare that the members of the Lytton Commission are fully aware of the facts relating to the Japanese invasion of China. But they are afraid to speak out their minds and advocate a just settlement and have therefore made the present suggestions, bearing in mind Japan's interests.

Concluding, the message states that it has now been quite evident that there is no more use in dependence on the League or on treaties. Let the whole nation mobilize its own strength and be prepared for sacrifices in the struggle to uphold China's sovereignty and territorial integrity.

MANSLAUGHTER

CORONER'S JURY FIND AGAINST DRIVER

A verdict of manslaughter was returned yesterday by the Coroner's Jury at the conclusion of the inquest into the death of an amah, Wu Ah Ngo who was killed on September 22 by a motor lorry, driven by Chin Tze-chong.

A jury of three, comprising Messrs. R. A. Ramsay, A. L. Burton and H. C. Tinson heard the case.

Further evidence was given supporting that given by previous witnesses—that the tramcar was stopped when one of A. S. Watson and Company's motor lorries drove past, knocking down a boy and killing the amah.

A statement taken from the lorry driver (who has since dis-

LOCAL WEDDINGS

WELL KNOWN CHINESE FAMILIES UNITED

A wedding of considerable interest in Chinese circles took place at the Registry Office yesterday afternoon, when Miss Lim Him-luen was married to Mr. Peck Plu-tien. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lim Peng-mau, and a niece of Mr. Ko Loung-hoe, the well known local banker; while the bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Peck Plu-tien.

After the ceremony the party adjourned to the Lane Crawford Restaurant. The best men were Messrs. Liang Tze-wah and Teng Tin-kau, and the bridesmaids, Misses Violet and Lily Ko. A prominent gathering of guests were present at the reception.

The Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall proposed the happiness of the happy couple and in a bright speech wished them health and prosperity. The Lane Crawford orchestra rendered a programme of music while tea was served.

Kowloon Ceremony

There was a large attendance on Saturday afternoon at the wedding of Sergeant James Scrim, of the Hongkong Police, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Scrim, of Wornit, Scotland, to Miss Elizabeth Davidson, eldest daughter of Mr. William Davidson and the late Mrs. Davidson, of London, and formerly of Dundee. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Allen at the Kowloon Union Church, and the service was choral, with Mrs. F. Short at the organ.

The bride looked charming in a dress of white lace with a shell-pink underslip, and slippers to match, her veil being arranged with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of pink and white Honolulu creper. The bride was given away by Chief Inspector Paterson of the H.K. Police.

Miss Joyce Paterson was the bridesmaid, and she was dressed in a pretty costume of Lido blue, with cap to match, trimmed with shell-pink and blue forget-me-nots. It was made by Bunice. She carried a bouquet of pink and white Honolulu.

Mr. G. Perkins, of the H.K. Police, discharged the duties of best-man.

A reception was subsequently held at the Police Training School, where the happy couple were the recipients of a host of good wishes.

The bride's going-away dress was a creation of brown and blue voile, with hat to match.

"THAT DEPENDS," said the seller. "If we ship VIA SEATTLE it won't take so long!"

"Ship them VIA SEATTLE, then! The sooner they arrive, the sooner we can sell them!" And the buyer was pleased to learn of the short United States route from the Orient to American markets.

In the future, you may be assured, that buyer will specify the route VIA SEATTLE on his own requisitions. Likewise the shipper on his shipping instructions. CEMENT PLOT

JAPANESE PRODUCT IN GREEN ISLAND BAGS.

The Green Island Cement Company were the complainants in a case heard before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court yesterday afternoon when three Chinese, Li Sang, Shek On and Li Kam-tung, were summoned for infringing the Trade Mark Ordinance.

Mr. O. E. C. Marton appeared on behalf of the Cement Company, while Mr. J. B. Prentis was for the three defendants.

Outlining the case for the prosecution, Mr. Marton said the summonses were taken out as a result of information received by the Green Island Cement Company following a notice offering a reward of $100 to any person or persons who could give information leading to the arrest of any person or persons unlawfully using the trade mark of the Company.

This notice was inserted in the Chinese newspapers on October 6, and on the following day, the Company received information that two junks were lying at Shamshui-po with bags of cement bearing the marks of the Company. It was alleged at the same time that the cement was not the kind manufactured by the Company.

On receiving this information, Mr. T. C. T. Beck, of the Company, together with another European, went over to Shamshui-po where he found these two junks lying near the Shamshui-po Military Camp. The crew of these junks, on seeing the approach of Mr. Beck and his companion, fled. In vain Mr. Beck called upon them to stop, and he had to go to the Shamshui-po Police Station for assistance.

Police Search.

Detective Sergeant Goodwin, to whom Mr. Beck made a report of the affair, detailed a Chinese detective to the spot to watch the junks with the view to ascertaining the owners of the craft. The Chinese detective would say that the second and third defendants were the owners of the junks.

A search of the junks made by the Police later in the day revealed 200 bags of cement on board. Evidence would be given that this cement was not the cement manufactured by the Green Island Cement Company but was of an inferior quality probably costing about $1.20 per bag, whereas the price of the Company's cement was $3.25 per bag.

Mr. Prentis, at this point, remarked that he admitted that the cement found on the junks was not manufactured by the Green Island Cement Company, but was of Japanese origin. He also admitted that the bags found on the junks possibly originated from the Company.

Mr. Beck, in the witness-box, testified that he inserted a notice in the Chinese newspapers offering a reward for information leading to the arrest of people infringing the trade mark of the Company. This notice was inserted on October 6. On the 7th, he received information as a result of which he went to Shamshui-po where he found two junks containing bags of cement. The numbers of these junks were T15131 and 352V. There were about six men and some women on 352V, but on seeing him, the men fled hurriedly. He called on them to stop, but they did not do so. He accordingly went to the Shamshui-po Police Station and reported the matter. A Chinese detective was then sent out to watch the junks.

Summonses Taken Out.

Witness went back to Shamshui-po in the afternoon and found Li Sang. In due course, he took out summonses against this man Li Sang and the two owners of the junks.

He attended the Police search of the junks and saw that No. T15131 contained a full load of cement, about 200 bags in all. He noticed that all these bags bore the mark of the Green Island Cement Company. On the other junk, there was a quantity of bags which did not bear their mark.

VON GRONAU DELAYED

AEROPLANE UNDER REPAIR IN RANGOON

Rangoon, Oct. 12.

Repairs to his aeroplane will delay for about five days the departure of Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, the German aviator who was rescued by the British trawler Karagola.—Our Own Correspondent.

Capt. von Gronau, the German round-the-world flier, was forced down in the Indian Ocean, but was rescued and arrived at Rangoon.

Twenty of bags which did not bear their mark.

Altogether 200 bags of cement were seized by the Police.

Evidence was given by Sergeant Goodwin of the search, and by a Chinese detective, Li Ming, of watching the junks.

The Defence.

In his defence, Mr. Prentis said his case was that Li Sang, the first defendant, was an employee of a man named Li Cheung, who recently returned to China from Singapore. Li Cheung wanted to build a house at Waichow, near Canton, for his own use and occupation, and for the purpose of building this house, he sent Li Sang to Hongkong to purchase cement, giving him $1,000.

Li Sang accordingly came down to Hongkong and purchased, through a man named Ho Tak, 602 bags of Japanese cement. At the time of the sale, Ho Tak informed him that in view of the embargo on Japanese goods in Canton, it would be impossible to get the cement through with the present Japanese marks attached to the bags. For the purpose of getting this cement through, Li Sang had arranged for the cement to be transferred from the Japanese bags into ones bearing the marks of the Green Island Cement Company. The transfer was made on the two junks on the morning of October 7 and it happened that the Police arrived later in the day.

"No Infringement."

Mr. Prentis submitted that that could not be called an infringement of the Trade Mark Ordinance. He submitted that no offence was committed under this Ordinance as he would prove that no sale was intended, and therefore there could be no intent to defraud the public. Trade, he submitted, meant an offer to the public, either by exchange or sale, and there was nothing of the sort in the present case. The first defendant, Li Sang, had been sent down by his master from Canton to purchase cement for the erection of his own building; and there was no intention of selling the cement.

After hearing the evidence of the defence, which corroborated Mr. Prentis' outline, his Worship said on the facts of the case he could not believe the story of the defence. He held that the first defendant had not discharged the onus which was on him to show that he would not defraud any prospective purchasers.

Mr. Prentis argued that if there was no embargo on Japanese goods in Canton, the cement would have been taken up to Canton without having to be transferred into bags belonging to the Green Island Cement Company.

His Worship ruled against him, however, and convicted the first defendant of applying a false trade description to his goods, and being in possession of goods which bore a false trade mark. The second and third defendants were convicted of the latter charge only.

The first defendant was fined $100 or six weeks on the first charge and $50 or one month on the second, in addition to paying costs of $200, while the second and third defendants were fined $100 each with the alternative of six weeks' hard labour.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY

COMIC OPERA TO BE PRODUCED

"The Fountain of Youth", a comic opera by W. Graham Robertson with music by Alfred Reynolds, is to be produced by the Hongkong Philharmonic Society in January next.

Owing to the closing of the Theatre Royal, the four performances, to be given from January 18th-21st, will be staged at the King's Theatre, which is considered a great improvement over the Society's old venue, affording considerably greater seating capacity, comfortable seats and an uninterrupted view for everyone in the house.

Prices are to be $3, $2, and $1, with seats in the stalls for service men at 70 cents each, all including tax. What is believed to be an innovation for Hongkong will be that every seat in the house will be bookable.

"The Fountain of Youth" was first produced at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith by Sir Nigel Playfair last year and enjoyed a good press as the following reports indicate:

"The Fountain of Youth" is jolly and enjoyable. The tunes are simple and melodious, the plot is full of amusing and inconspicuous surprises, and the dialogue is first-rate nonsense.—Saturday Review.

"Sir Nigel Playfair presented something that is so rare nowadays as to be almost unique—a comic opera which is not only genuinely comic, but genuinely tuneful."—Daily Express.

The production is in the capable hands of Mr. S.A. Sweet, with Mr. D.S. Hill as Musical Director, and the first chorus rehearsal will be held at the Cathedral Hall at 5.30 p.m. next Monday.

LIBERALS' POLICY

MASSED QUEEN'S HALL MEETING

"L.G." ON TREATY OF VERSAILLES

London, Oct. 13.

A great audience at Queen's Hall last night recorded its approval of the resignations of the Liberal ex-Cabinet members, Sir Herbert Samuel, Sir Archibald Sinclair and their colleagues.

Sir Herbert Samuel was the principal speaker. He claimed that the main task for which he had joined the Government was finished.

"L.G." HOLDS OWN MEETING.
In the meanwhile, Mr. Lloyd George, who refused to attend the meeting at Queen's Hall, was addressing a large peace gathering at the Guildhall.

The veteran statesman issued a warning of the danger ever-present of the world unwittingly plunging into another war.

He was convinced, he said, that no ruler in Europe desired war in 1914, but the machinery, once started, crashed forward and overwhelmed civilisation.

DEFENDS TREATY IF—
Mr. Lloyd George said he was quite prepared to defend the Treaty of Versailles if it was completely carried out, but he declared that the majority of the signatories never intended that.

Before the ink was dry, they were arranging to create new armies.

"I am the last man to plead for Germany, but honour demands that we carry out our pledged word and to follow Germany's example in disarming."—Reuter.

MARKET FOKI SENTENCED

PECULIAR ASSAULT INCIDENT

Should a butcher wear a white jacket, if he so desires? The question appears frivolous, but on its answer depends the meaning of a serious happening at the Central Market yesterday morning, when a Chinese was assaulted by three others, and severely wounded over one eye with a chopper.

Attracted to the spot by the din consequent on the affray, Sergt. R. Davies was called upon to arrest one of the assailants, and to take to hospital the injured man, who was hurt on the forehead above the eyes by a chopper blow which went down to the bone. Fung Chee, the man alleged to have struck the blow, was charged before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court this morning.

His Worship asked what the cause of the trouble was, and all that Sergt. Davies could say was that it had something to do with a jacket.

The injured man, who had in the meantime had three stitches over one eye, explained that he was relating to a friend the tale of a butcher who went about wearing a white jacket, when Fung Chee, a market foki who was passing by at the moment, overheard the remark and thought he was the butt of it.

In answer to the charge, Fung Chee stated: "He meant me to hear the remark, and all I said was that if he did not like my wearing a white jacket, he could throw himself into the gutter and drown himself there."

"You know you might have killed him with the chopper," his Worship pointed out.

Defendant denied having used any deadlier weapon than a wooden clog.

His Worship sentenced defendant to fourteen days' hard labour without the option on a charge of assault, ordered him to pay $5 compensation to the complainant, or to undergo a further week's imprisonment in default, and, finally, to sign a bond of $50 to keep the peace.
